"STRIKE SEEMS INEVITABLE," PHONE COMPANY'S WARNING

GERMANY TO APPEAL TO WILSON

Will Ask President at Final Conference to Save Her Colonies

By ALFRED G. ANDERSEN, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

(Copyright, 1919, by the International News Service.)

Weimar, April 14.—Germany is going to appeal to President Wilson at the final peace conference to save her colonies. This was revealed today by Count von Brockdorff - Rantzau, Foreign Minister and member of the German peace delegation, in an exclusive interview granted the International News Service.

Every demand differing in any essential from the fourteen points and the program of President Wilson," said the Foreign Minister. "We can no more concede nor surrender German territory except under conditions agreed to in November than we can fulfil the excessive indemnity claims.

"Foremost in our vital interests are our colonial activities. The German people are extremely pained at President Wilson's unfair judgment of German colonial work in his introductory League of Nations speech. Whereas judgment was based upon records submitted by our bitterest adversaries, the oldest principle of right bids him (President Wilson) to listen to the accused. We hope we shall be able to convince President Wilson that the new Germany will not continue past mistakes and blunders from which no colonial power is innocent, but will follow the good traditions of younger Germany's colonial policies.

"It is Germany's part now not to make, but to ward off demands."

The Foreign Minister declared that lasting world peace would be impossible if the vital interests of Germany are not provided for. Germany, he con-

QUINCY ELECTRIC LIGHT COMPANY LOWERS RATE

Following the charge that it has been paying excessive dividends for a year, the Quincy Electric Light Company today reduced the price of electricity from 15½ cents to 12 cents per kilowatt hour. The charge was made at a recent hearing by Commissioner Lowenberg. He also asserted that the company had not made sufficient provision for depreciation and that it had charged higher rates than companies similarly located.

Japs Take 3 Wounded Koreans From a Yankee Hospital

By International News Service.

Washington, April 14.—Japanese police entered the Severance Hospital, an institution maintained by Americans at Seoul, Seoul, Korea, and removed three Korean patients suffering from gunshot wounds received in a clash with the police, according to State Department advices this afternoon.

The men were removed, it was stated, over the objections of the chief surgeon.

Following the occurrence the Seoul chief of police issued a statement in which he asserted his right to take such procedure, on the ground that the patients were criminals.

7 TRANSPORTS BRING 10,000 TROOPS

Plattsburg First and Duc D'Aosta Second Arrival at New York Today

By International News Service.

New York, April 14.—Seven big troopships, bringing more than 10,000 officers and men of the American army, were scheduled to reach this port today.

The first to arrive at her pier was the Plattsburg, which docked at 6:50 o'clock in Hoboken. The Duc D'Aosta was the second arrival, entering the North River shortly before 10 o'clock. The other ships due today are the Floridian, the Mexican, the Edward Luckenbach, the Rochambeau and the Carillo, which was due to arrive off Sandy Hook at midnight Sunday, but delayed for reasons not reported.

The Canopic, one of the several vessels overdue, will reach New York tomorrow.

MANCHESTER MAN HELD IN AUTO CASE APPEALS

Nashua, N. H., April 14.—Lucien LeMay, a prominent business man of Manchester, was sentenced to thirty days and fined $50 in the Municipal Court today on a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. The case marked the first appearance in court of Timothy O'Connor as county solicitor. LeMay appealed.

NASHUA MAN SHOT; DIES IN HOSPITAL

Nashua, N. H., April 14.—John Manthorne died today at the Memorial Hospital, as the result of being shot in the neck on West Pearl street on April 2 by Demetrios Paptonikolos, who is now confined in the State Hospital for Insane. Paptonikolos, who is said to be a religious fanatic, was reported as declaring that Manthorne "had stolen his mind."

TRIBUTES TO MRS. HEARST

Men and Women in Many Walks of Life Mourn Beloved Philanthropist

San Francisco, Cal., April 14.—Tender expressions of sympathy, words of tribute to a life well spent in the service of her fellowbeings, and sentiments of deep regret over her loss to the Commonwealth came to the family of Mrs. Phoebe Hearst following the news of her death at her home at Pleasanton.

The messages spoke in simple but tender words of the regard in which Mrs. Hearst was held. Her co-workers on the board of regents of the University of California were deeply touched by the news of her death and sent messages of sorrow at the loss of her assistance and counsel.

Other expressions of sympathy came from many parts of the State, and included tributes from both men and women who had been associated with Mrs. Hearst in the upbuilding and development of California.

Following are some of the expressions of sympathy:

GOV. STEPHENS' TRIBUTE.

"Mrs. Hearst was one of California's foremost women," said William D. Stephens, Governor of the State of California. "She has given largely of her life and her means to the building up of our State.

"To her, in large part, is due the splendid success that has attended the development of the State University at Berkeley.

"California has been helped and honored by her long, eventful and successful life, and California will ever honor her memory."

President Aurelia Henry Reinhardt of Mills College, Berkeley, said:

"Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst, founder of kindergartens in California, regent and upbuilder of the University of California, the unostentatious helper for many years of young men and women of our State, the supporter of

ALLEGED SLAYERS CASE GOES TO JURY TODAY

Pittsfield, April 14.—The cases of Lincoln McKinley Grant, charged with first degree murder in connection with the death, February 26, 1917, of Miles Hewitt, goes to the jury late today. Sheriff M. Stevens, Grant's counsel and District Attorney Joseph B. Ely summed up this forenoon. Stevens told of the cases of insanity on the maternal side of the defendant and two on the paternal side—brought tears to the eyes of jurors. The defendant was sixteen years old when the alleged murder was committed.

POLICE RIDE ON CARS, PREVENT HOLDUPS

To frustrate future holdups of street railway conductors, such as that which occurred on a Dudley street car on Southampton street last Wednesday, policemen in plain clothes are riding on street cars in that vicinity. Wednesday's holdup was the third within a fortnight, and it is said the youths who attacked Conductor Murray relieved him of $8 in fares. Conductors Donovan and Moriarty were similarly held up a few days previously.

OWNERS OF MILLS ARE BLAMED

Lawrence Trouble Placed at Employers' Doors by Union Official

Lawrence, April 14.—The mill owners themselves were blamed directly for causing the strike in the textile mills by Central Labor Union officials at the hearing of the strike by the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration today.

Business Agent Hickey of the local branch of the union charged that the mill owners in agitating the foreign-born workers in their mills against the United Textile Workers' original demands for a forty-eight-hour week brought on the present situation.

Hickey's condemnation of the mill owners occurred when Chairman Howland of the State Board had asked how the present demand for a forty-eight-hour week and fifty-four-hour pay had originated.

"It did not start until the mill officials put up posters in the mills and sent out circulars in the pay envelops of the men asking them, 'do you want to lose six hours pay a week?'" Hickey replied.

"Then the men began to make trouble and to organize for a forty-eight-hour week with no reduction in pay," the business agent declared.

The hearing opened with Chairman Willard Howland of the State board presiding.

"The 15,000 to 20,000 operatives now striking in Lawrence," said Attorney Roewer in opening the strikers' case, "are striking for the open and shut proposition for fifty-four hours' pay for forty-eight hours' work.

"They deny that Bolshevism is at the bottom of the strike. They object to the 12½ per cent. reduction in their wages, which the acceptance of 48 hours' pay for 48 hours' work

BABY CHOKES TRYING TO SUCK THUMB

New York, April 14.—While trying to suck his thumb, eighteen-months-old Robert F. Frietz choked himself to death. The child was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Frietz of No. 364 Richmond turnpike, Tomkinsville, Staten Island.

The mother sewed one arm to the baby's nightdress, to break the habit. In his struggles to free his hand the baby got one arm out of the sleeve and partly inside the neckband, drawing it so close he strangled.

MAN INJURED AS MOTORS CRASH IN LEXINGTON

One man was badly injured and two other men were shaken up in a head-on crash between an automobile and a motorcycle on the State highway, the main thoroughfare between Boston and Cheap "Deems," at Grassland Stock Farm, Lexington.

The injured man is John Dresselly of No. 24 Orchard place, Arlington. He sustained a broken right thigh and minor lacerations on his head.

START CRUSADE UPON OPEN CYCLE CUT-OUTS

Nashua, N. H., April 14.—A State-wide crusade against motor cyclists who operate their machines with open cut-outs has begun. Inspector Harry Hastings has been detailed to cover the Nashua district, and the rest of the State is covered by other inspectors. Two cyclists appeared in court here today as a result of the crusade.

International Extends Its Service in Europe

The International News Service has formed a reciprocal alliance, exactly similar to the one it has with the London Daily Express, with Le Petit Journal, one of the most influential newspapers in Paris. Le Petit Journal has a circulation of one million and is a strong supporter of the government of Premier Clemenceau.

Beginning May 1 the International News Service will have a similar alliance with Il Secolo of Milan, the leading newspaper of Italy. Il Secolo has staff representatives all over southeastern Europe.

With these new alliances, in addition to its own complete newsgathering force, the International News Service is organized to cover Europe from London to Constantinople in the most exhaustive fashion.

EDISON LIGHT MUST FURNISH RATE BILLS

Commission So Directs After Company Had Fought American's Petition

The Edison Illuminating Company will furnish the names of the 12,000 customers, with duplicates of one month's bills, where charges are based on more than one rate, to counsel for the Boston American's petitioners, by order of the Gas and Electric Commissioners.

Chairman Alonzo W. Weed directed the company to furnish full information on this question.

This fact was determined, after a bitter fight today, at the continued hearing on the Boston American's petition for cheaper gas and light. Answers to seventy-eight interrogatories propounded by the petitioners are being given in this continued series of hearings.

Attorney Frederick W. Ives, representing the Edison Company, put up a battle to withhold the names of the 12,000 or more patrons, whose charges are based upon more than one rate, but agreed finally to furnish such a list with full names, addresses and duplicate bills as shown by the commission that such a procedure would result in saving more time than if bills and addresses for a designated area alone were furnished.

The company also received instructions from the commissioners to furnish full information from such data as was at hand, shewing the justification for the so-called "coal clause" charges.

These two answers will be filed by the company and furnished the petitioners at a continued hearing, the date of which has been set as June 2. At that time, also, diagrams and detail that are not yet completed, but which are designated to answer further interrogatories, will be furnished the petitioners.

GREAT WELCOME FOR TROOPS BACK FROM ITALY

By International News Service.

New York, April 14.—The first American troops who fought on the Italian front to return to this country arrived here today on the Duca d'Osta from Genoa and received a royal welcome. They were 1,642 veterans of the 332d Infantry of the 83d Division, men from Ohio and Western Pennsylvania. The Mayor's Committee of Welcome went down the bay on the police boat Petrol and met the Duca d'Osta at quarantine. A moment later a boat loaded with Italians with bands playing and streamers of American and Italian colors flying drew alongside. Among these were a number of Ohio and Pennsylvania Italians.

MAN KILLED AND WOMAN HURT IN AUTO CRASH

John Cosgrove Dies and Mrs. Flynn Injured When Returning From Errand of Mercy

Marlboro, April 14.—John Cosgrove of Maverick street, Chelsea, was instantly killed and Mrs. Anastasia Flynn of No. 45 Congress avenue, Chelsea, received scalp wounds and other injuries today when an automobile in which they were riding skidded on the State highway west of the Wayside Inn at Sudbury, after the machine had left the asphalt road, and struck a tree, pitching the occupants out head foremost.

James Hurley, the chauffeur, and James Hooley, the other passenger and son-in-law of Mrs. Flynn, although considerably shaken up, were not injured beyond receiving a few bruises.

The accident occurred on the Marlboro side of the Sudbury line. According to Hurley, the party left Chelsea at 1 a. m. today on a trip to Rutland, to call on Mrs. Flynn's brother, who was reported dying at a sanitarium, where he had been undergoing treatment. When they arrived at the place they found that her brother had died.

They started back shortly after 5 o'clock today. Everything was proceeding smoothly, when Hurley claims his eyes became suddenly heavy. The car was skidded and crashed into a tree on the roadway.

Cosgrove was killed instantly. Mrs. Flynn was taken in the Marlboro police ambulance to the Marlboro Hospital.

REFUSES TO YIELD TO GIRLS' DEMANDS

"The strike appears to be inevitable."

That was the gist of a statement issued today by General Manager William R. Driver of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company on the strike of Boston and New England telephone operators scheduled for seven o'clock tomorrow morning.

Mr. Driver puts responsibility up to the Telephone Operators' Union, on the ground that it has "firmly refused" to adopt the wage adjustment procedure, which, he says, is easy to adopt and offers promising solution.

DRIVER'S STATEMENT.

The statement by General Manager Driver of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company was as follows:

"No change has taken place in the telephone situation as regards the wage adjustment procedure which the Telephone Operators' Union has firmly refused to adopt as a solution of the present difficulty. That method of procedure, as established by the government, is so easy of adoption, and promises so well, that it seemed a solution of the entire difficulty. The strike appears to be inevitable.

"The apparent determination of the union is shown in a statement which appears to have been authorized and is among the items on the subject in the Boston Herald on the morning of April 14 as follows:

"'Miss O'Connor made it plain that even if Mr. Driver was now willing to recommend the desired new wage schedule of the operators the 8,000 girls involved in the controversy would refuse to stay the strike and go through the Burleson procedure of submitting the schedule first to Mr. Driver, then to the operating board in New York, then to the wire control board in Washington, and, last of all, to Mr. Burleson, one whose recommendation the entire scale depends.'

AFFECTS 20,000.

"The representatives of the union operators have maintained at all times that their maximum demands must be granted. Now, from the above statement, it appears that unless these maximum demands are granted by the Postmaster-General without further discussion, the inconvenience and danger that a strike involves is left on New England is to be insisted upon by them."

The strike, which goes into effect

PARADE ROUTE UNCHANGED; ARMY, AIDED BY THE POLICE, WINS

COMPLETE PLANS TO CARE FOR THE TROOPS OF THE 26TH

Lieutenant-Colonel Albert Greenlaw and Major Paul Loughridge, who are in charge of parade arrangements at Northeastern Headquarters, issued today these instructions to all intending to witness the parade:

Keep out of the way of marching soldiers during the parade.

Keep children from the front line.

Don't mingle with troops in the street as they are going to parade.

Keep still while the parade is on. If you choose a place don't change it. Movements are dangerous.

The army, aided by the Boston police, triumphed today over the committees representing the Governor and Mayor on the question of parade. As a result of their victory the previously announced route stands. Business interests and some one of the two committees wanted some downtown streets, other than those already chosen, included in the route.

Colonel A. S. Williams argued in favor of the original plan. Superintendent Michael H. Crowley supported him. The police head declared that Boston had only a sufficient number of policemen to properly police the route selected some time ago. Consequently the marchers will not pass through Tremont street to Court, to State, to High, to Summer to Winter, to Tremont.

The committee of army headquarters having charge of the billeting of the troops during their stay in Boston has completed its schedule. The only private building to figure in their considerations is Horticultural Hall, which will be used in addition to the armories nearby.

ARMORIES INSPECTED.

Commonwealth, East Boston; South, Charlestown; Cadet and Cambridge armories will be used during the two days the troops are in town. Today a committee consisting of Quartermaster General William F. Emery of Massachusetts, Major Oscar Lagerquist of Maine, Major Maurice Cook and Captain Walter Hallstrom of Northeastern Headquarters, inspected the armories in advance for supplies.

The following plans for handling the troops during their days in Boston are announced:

FIRST DAY: Cadet Armory, 101st Engineers; East Boat Armory, part of 101st Infantry; South Armory, Division Headquarters, Headquarters Troop and detachment, 51st Infantry Brigade headquarters, balance of the Infantry and 102d Machine Gun Battalion; Horticultural Hall, 101st Field Signal Battalion, 101st Machine Gun Battalion; Cambridge Armory, 102d Infantry, part; Charlestown Armory, balance of 102d Infantry; Commonwealth Armory, 52d Brigade headquarters, 103d Infantry and detail for horses.

SECOND DAY: Cadet Armory—101st Ammunition Train, 26th M. P. Company, 101st Train Headquarters, quartermaster officers, mail detachment, A. P. O. 709, Sales Commissary No. 15, 101st mobile ordnance repair shop and salvage squad No. 29; East Armory—102d Field Artillery; South Armory, 104th Infantry; Horticultural Hall—103rd Machine Gun Battalion; Cambridge Armory—102d Field Artillery, part; Charlestown Armory, 102d Field Artillery, balance and 101st Supply Train; Commonwealth Armory—51st Artillery Brigade headquarters, 101st Field Artillery and 101st Sanitary Train.

MECHANICS HALL DINNER.

Members of the 101st Engineers will be brought to Boston on the day before the parade in automobile and auto trucks. They will be entertained that night at dinner at Mechanics Hall. Members of the Air Service Corps will act as their drivers from camp and also as their hosts. On the day of the parade they will have luncheon at the Westworth Institute.

At the starting point of the parade, Charles and Beacon streets, the Salvation Army will dispense free of charge, sandwiches, doughnuts, coffee and chocolate.

Beds will be stationed at vantage points along the line of march, thus permitting musicians in line to enjoy real periods from time to time resuming the marchers a constant stream of music. The parade committee requests that spectators do not gather around these stationary bands, but to stand aside and enjoy the music rather than crowd in around the players.

Discharged and wounded members of the Yankee Division who are to appear in the parade will be housed at the following places: Knights of Columbus, No. 204 Berkeley street; Y. M. C. A., No. 316 Huntington avenue; Salvation Army, No. 8 East Brookline street; War Camp Community Service, No. 15 Beacon street, and Navy Welfare Board, No. 47 Mt. Vernon street.

Should these organizations not be in position to care for all the men who want to march other welfare organizations in the city will look after the overflow. The wounded men who are unable to march will be housed at the Knights of Columbus building in Berkeley street. Automobiles will call for the men at 11 o'clock on the day of the parade.

These wounded men will be carried near the head of the line of parade, just in back of the captured German howitzers. Provision for such of the wounded men as are still in the service, but are unable to pay their transportation to Boston for the parade will be made by the Red Cross. Discharged men who are unable to provide their own transportation will be cared for by their respective States.

REGULATION UNIFORMS.

Wounded and discharged men will be dressed in regulation army uniform, with helmets where available. When helmets are not available, overseas caps may be worn, and if these be not available campaign hats will suffice. Arms and gas masks will not be carried. Discharged men are requested to wear their discharge certificates on the left arm.

These men will report just inside the "Common fence," along Charles street, at 11 o'clock on the morning of the parade. There will be sign along the Charles street mall, indicating the different units of the division and discharged men will fall in behind their respective units.

Practically all of these men have been classified into four classes: Those who live near Boston and require neither housing or transportation; men able to march who do not live near Boston and who require housing, but are able to purchase their own transportation; men who do not live in the vicinity of Boston who require both housing and transportation; men living in the vicinity of Boston, requiring both housing and transportation and who are unable to march.

COL. J. W. BEACHAM, JR.

Col. Joseph W. Beacham, Jr., is known to athletes throughout the country as one of Cornell University's most famous football players. He is forty years of age and graduated from Cornell in 1897 and is also a distinguished graduate of the Army School of the Line, 1915.

He was a private and sergeant in the Astor battery during 1898 and 1899 and later was connected with the 1st, 23d, 17th and 29th United States Infantry and 20th Infantry Signal Corps.

He has been a football coach at West Point Military Academy. Before going overseas as a lieutenant-colonel in the Quartermaster Division he was an instructor at the Plattsburg business men's camp. He was appointed colonel of infantry in France.

SPECULATORS SEEK PARADE TICKETS

Tickets for the grandstands for the Twenty-sixth Division parade, Friday, April 25, will not be distributed until the early part of next week.

It is the desire of the ticket committee to keep the tickets out of the hands of speculators, who are flocking to Boston.

The committee wants every ticket sent out to go to a relative of a Yankee Division soldier. The speculators are using every means to get the much-coveted tickets.

Boston speculators are particularly insistent in their demands that politicians and other acquaintances assist them in gaining their ends.

The grandstands, which will seat more than 50,000, will be ready April 22.

The lumber already has been placed at the designated points.

Today the work will be started at top speed and rushed to completion.

All of the Twenty-Sixth Division is now here or on the high seas. The transport Winifredian is due here Wednesday. She is followed by the Patricia, due here April 20, and the battleship New Jersey, due April 22.

More than 8,000 troops are aboard the three vessels. The Vedic left Brest April 11, carrying sixty officers and 2,229 men. It is due April 21.

Colonel Albert S. Williams, chief of staff of the Northeastern Department, will make public today the names to be billeted in the various armories.

There will be a conference today at the department headquarters.

Brigadier-General Palmer E. Pierce, commanding the depot brigade at Camp Devens, paid his respects to Major-General Edwards, commander of the department. General Pierce was with the 26th Division. He was a member of the general staff at Washington, and for many years was the West Point athletics' representative.

PAY DAY IN ARMY A MIRAGE, SAYS SOLDIER

Pay day in the army leaves the buck private "about ten ounces lighter than a cork," according to the Base Bull.

This Bull is a lively weekly newspaper published by the 29th U. S. Engineers at Langres, France. One of the latest issues arriving on this side has an article on "Pay Day—The Monthly Mirage." It describes pay day from the doughboy's standpoint, as follows:

Pay day has the highest rate of evaporation of any of the evanescent features of the army. Nothing in army life compares with it in the regard. Exciting and inspiratory, it looms up for twenty-five or so days and is referred to in gleeful future tenses. Quickly, then, it comes and goes. It has an acknowledged bearing on the life of the enlisted man, but the influence is altogether too fleeting.

BACK TO SHYLOCK.

On close interpretation, pay day is the great settling-up exercise. In every company there are a few who can trace their ancestry back over the Jewish street to Shylock, and they never overlook the penciled entries on the blank spaces of their pocket dictionary. They never fail to get their portion.

Pay day is almost as much of a ceremony as launching a ship. It gives the top sergeant one more chance to line up the company alphabetically, according to rank, and shows the buck private how essential it is to don schemes for advancement.

The captain and his aides gather in the office or mess hall on this occasion and pile the groats on a blanket. A non-commissioned officer takes charge of the door. One man is allowed to enter at a time, and when the door slams behind him he feels as if he were about to be initiated into some secret order. After he salutes and gets $1.87 out of the $32 that he read about in the home-town paper before he joined the service, he is convinced that his hunch was correct.

NO PAY DAY FOR THESE.

Soldiers in the guard house have no interest in pay day. The rosy color, for them, is bleached by the court-martial. For the conscientious private also there is but the faintest semblance of regard. After he allotted $15 home, paid a bit on his Liberty Bond, assumed the maximum of war risk insurance and has loosed $1 to his laundry fund, he doesn't have enough left to constitute an institution. He is about ten ounces lighter than a cork.

Pay day with the officers are said to be different from those of the enlisted men. A fairly well authenticated rumor has it that their figures of pay are slightly higher. For some more than $1,000, after ready deduction, permitting a quiet, redolent gloat as they compare the pile in hand with the amounts they used to hook back in civil life in the tannery and on the milk route.

A private has no conception of the pay day of a Major or Colonel. To him the malice of these make an oversubscribed Liberty Loan look like a mortgage on a crumbling tenement in the backwoods. It is often said in the army that a non-com at $42 and found is better off than a lieutenant who pays his own expenses; but there never has been a society for the government to set aside a day for the trading of status.

To a private there are no figures, excepting a few wild, chaotic hieroglyphs, past $5.42.

OPPOSE EVERETT POLICE PROMOTIONS

The proposal to have two additional inspectors appointed to the Everett police force, with rank of sergeant, will probably not meet with much success when it comes before the city government, according to indications in that city, where sentiment seems to be against the proposal.

Wake up, Boston!

"Y.D." stands for Yankee Division.

You know that.

But it also stands for "Your Duty."

Your duty, Boston, is to offer the hospitality of your homes at the time of the coming Yankee Division parade on April 25 to relatives of soldiers coming from all over New England to see the parade.

The Family Hospitality Committee will ask New England Governors, Mayors and town authorities to send estimates of the number of parents and other near relatives of Yankee Division soldiers who will need accommodations in Boston at parade time; also the length of time such accommodations are desired.

It was figured Saturday that at least 20,000 relatives of parading soldiers would seek accommodations here. Today that estimate was raised to 30,000.

BACK BAY IS SLOW.

Alexander Whiteside, corporation counsel of Boston and chairman of Mayor Peters' parade reception committee, of which the hospitality committee is a sub-committee, made particular mention today of the Back Bay district as one which is rich in hospitality opportunity, but which is not responding so far as it might.

The hospitality committee received about 100 letters today in response to the appeal. Up to last Saturday night, about one thousand accommodations had been offered.

It is noticed that most household-ers specify that they prefer women guests, or fathers and mothers of soldiers.

It is estimated that seven out of eight responses mean free hospitality. Those who feel that they must charge lodging will have to designate to the committee the exact price they will require of the parade tenant.

The committee is all primed to head off profiteering by those who have rooms to offer at advanced prices.

The committee has distributed to Yankee Division soldiers at Camp Devens cards for them to send to their relatives and to be filled out with application for parade accommodations. The relatives are requested, in turn, to send the filled-in cards to the committee.

The Family Hospitality Committee of the 26th Division Parade, which has quarters at room 630 in the Little Building, corner of Boylston and Tremont streets, is struggling with this hospitality problem.

THE COMMITTEE'S APPEAL.

The committee has distributed thousands of cards through Boston homes to be filled out and returned to the committee, telling whether householders can accommodate one or more relatives of out-of-town soldiers at the parade time.

The committee has also issued the following appeal by way of the city's pulpits:

We earnestly appeal to all the good people of Boston and immediate vicinity, to lodge, on the night of April 24 and perhaps the night of the 25th, mothers, fathers of close relatives of soldiers, who will come from all over New England to see the 26th Division parade. We plan to care for only those coming from beyond a 50-mile ride, except in case of old age or other special circumstances.

Unless our hospitable people respond to the limit of their home capacity, hundreds of mothers and other relatives of our brave boys will be unable to see the parade of their sons, as there will be a very great shortage of hotel and other usual accommodations.

Cards will be found at the door as you leave, which please fill out and promptly mail to address given thereon.

FAMILY HOSP. COMMITTEE.

PLANS RECEPTION TO SOLDIERS OF ROXBURY

City Councillor James A. Watson is planning a reception to the Roxbury boys who served in the recent war, and is sending letters to leading citizens of the district asking their support to the movement. Where and when the celebration will take place will be decided by the citizens at an early date. It has been suggested that the fourth of July would be a suitable day.

HOULTON TO BANQUET COL. FRANK M. HUME

Houlton, Me., April 14.—Colonel Frank M. Hume will arrive in Houlton Tuesday morning and will attend a banquet given by the Meduxnekeag Club Tuesday evening in his honor. The colonel will be accompanied by his wife and daughter, and will leave Wednesday night for Boston.

VICTORY FLEET WELCOMED BY THOUSANDS

103 Warships Parade in New York Harbor and Anchor in Hudson River

By International News Service.

New York, April 14.—The "Victory fleet" of the United States Navy was enthusiastically welcomed home by thousands of New Yorkers today as it steamed up the bay and came to anchor in the Hudson with 20,000 sailors and marines, most of whom saw service in the war zone.

The fleet, comprising 102 battleships, destroyers and repair ships, was not due to arrive until tomorrow. The vanguard, composed of gray-coated destroyers riding four abreast, arrived off quarantine early in the morning. They passed swiftly through the narrows and past quarantine before the city was aware they were here.

Following the destroyers came fourteen super-dreadnoughts, led by Admiral Henry T. Mayo's flagship, the Pennsylvania.

There will be no navy parade while the fleet is here, but plans are being made for such a celebration in New York before Summer. Among the returning vessels are a number which Major Whitehead fought with German submarines. The Cassin bears the scars of a submarine attack and the Manley was damaged when she collided with another destroyer setting off depth bombs used in attacking submarines.

SAYS INCREASED FARES CUT CHURCH ATTENDANCE

Church attendance in Andover is falling off because of the increase in trolley fares, Selectman Walter S. Donald told the Public Service Commission today in asking that the rates be reduced. The fare on the Bay State road between Lawrence and Andover is twelve cents. It used to be six cents. "Andover is one of the best paying towns on the Bay State line," said Selectman Donald. "We believe that the charging of twelve cents exclusively when it imposes a fare of twelve cents for a ride of two or three miles."

MAJOR CONANT TO WED RICH KENTUCKY GIRL

Lexington, Ky., April 14.—The engagement is announced here today of Major Roger Williams Conant, Jr., of Boston, to Miss Dinsmore Patrick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Patrick of this city. The wedding will take place June 4. Miss Patrick is one of the wealthiest young women in the blue grass region, her father owning a great deal of property near the city where he has become noted as a livestock producer. Miss Patrick at the same time has been active in club work.

240 BUSINESS MEN TO GET JOBS FOR YD MEN

A committee called One Hundred Business Men, of the Chamber of Commerce, is working to secure employment for discharged YD men. It originated with Charles H. Taylor and now numbers 240 men. Each member is pledged to see that ten soldiers find positions. Anyone having work for a discharged soldier is urged to communicate with Chairman Burleigh at Fort Hill 3000.

$30,000 Fire in Meriden

Meriden, Ct., April 14.—Pulaski Hall, on Olive street, was burned today, with a loss of between $30,000 and $40,000.

IMPOSTORS IN UNIFORM REPORTED IN PROVIDENCE

Providence, April 14.—Complaint is being made to the police that impostors, who never saw war or even had a uniform on in service, are using uniforms of soldiers, sailors or marines to help them sell articles on the street. One class includes impostors who sell magazines at an advance over the regular rate under the fraudulent plea that the extra money is for the benefit of military men. The other class, hawking articles from house to house, plead that they are service men who are out of work.

American Is Thanked For Hospitality Assistance

Captain Beverly Rantoul, A. R. C., chairman of the hospitality committee on the Yankee Division parade, thanked the Boston American today for its assistance to the committee. He said:

"On behalf of the hospitality committee I wish to thank the Boston American for the co-operation it has shown in bringing this hospitality situation early to the attention of the public."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR AGAINST SUNDAY BALL

At a mass meeting held in Park Street Church under the auspices of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, the gathering went on record as unanimously opposed to the bill before the Legislature to legalize Sunday baseball.

The meeting also expressed itself unanimously in favor of the bill to prohibit motion picture shows on Sunday and to raise the age from fourteen to sixteen years when children can be present at amusement resorts without their parents.

TO THE PUBLIC:

We have been formally notified of a strike of union telephone operators, and that they intend there shall be serious interruption of telephone service in Boston and throughout New England on Tuesday, April 15.

It is a misfortune that our efforts to avert that situation have failed.

Under these circumstances, telephone users are advised that they should not depend upon telephone service, even for the care of emergencies.

Persistent effort will be made to restore normal conditions with promptness.

HAWKER AND GRIEVE TO START ON TRANSATLANTIC FLIGHT TODAY

CONFIDENT OF AIR VICTORY

Should Land at British Coal in 20 or 21 Hours, Hawker Declares

St. John's, N. F., April 14.—There was every indication at noon today that Harry G. Hawker and Lieutenant-Commander Grieve would be able to start this afternoon on their 2,000-mile transatlantic airplane flight for the $50,000 prize offered by the London Daily Mail.

It rained during the night, but the mist started to lift later in the morning. If Hawker is able to get away this evening it will preclude the possibility of a neck-and-neck air race between himself and F. P. Raynham, who does not plan to start until tomorrow. Hawker's Sopwith plane is in readiness.

HAWKER CONFIDENT.

"I'm perfectly satisfied with the machine, and I am just as confident that we will come through all right," Hawker said today. "The job is simple enough. Someone has to do it and we would like to do it first.

"On trials here the machine came up to my best expectations, as she did at Brooklands (near London) in a longer trial.

"Once off we will rise to ten thousand feet, which is over any fog, and we will hold that all the way till near the end, when we will lift to fifteen thousand feet, so that we may plane down fifteen miles, if necessary, or about a mile for each thousand feet, unless we meet with adverse winds.

"The flight is a straightaway task, and I anticipate no difficulty. We should land in Brookland's Aerodrome in twenty or twenty-one hours, for the distance is about 2,300 miles. I will keep going at one hundred miles an hour, which brings us to the Irish coast after 1,920 miles and then to Brooklands, which is about two hours and a half farther.

WILL GAIN 6 MILES AN HOUR.

"The running gear, or under carriage, will be slipped off after the getaway. So we will gain about six miles an hour in speed by the reduction of the resistance.

"The physical strain is nothing. I felt none on the long test flight abroad. Just before the war a boche chap stayed up more than twenty hours, though the longest flight of the war was ten hours.

"We will wear our life suits over our own working clothes and with seal boots. I don't know what food we will have, but I suppose water, beef, chocolate and coffee are on the machine and in the lifeboat.

"The loaded plane weighs 6,200 pounds without the load, about 3,000 pounds. The cargo is mostly petrol and oil with four hundred pounds of other stuff.

"I give one engine all my attention, while more than one makes just that much more load of engine weight, also fuel, and increases the air distances.

"As for the question of storms there is nothing to it. We can go above all storms."

SENTENCES ON FOUR CHARGES TOTAL A YEAR

On four charges Edward Coffey, nineteen, of Telegraph street, South Boston, was sentenced to an aggregate term of a year's imprisonment in South Boston court today. He appealed. For attempted assault with a revolver on Patrolman Powers he was sentenced to six months with two additional months for carrying a revolver without a permit. He was given four months more for threatening to injure two little girls. Mary Collins and Bridget Gannon. Coffey was suspected of implication in a holdup in Dorchester three weeks ago. Both Patrolmen Powers and Rutherford went to arrest him in a hotel on a thirty-eight-calibre service revolver.

ARREST ARLINGTON MAN FOR DEATH BY AUTO

Allan B. Crook, twenty-two years old, of Appleton street, Arlington, was arrested today by the Charlestown police, charged with manslaughter of John J. McNamara, thirty-two years old, of Monument avenue, Charlestown. McNamara was struck by an automobile on the morning of April 5 while running after a car at the corner of Chelsea street and Medford street. He died half an hour later. Police have been working on the case and made the arrest today.

MANY LAWYERS OPPOSE BILL FOR CONSTABLES

Homer Albers, dean of the Boston University Law School; Judges Joseph A. Sheehan and A. K. Cohen and a host of members of the Suffolk County Bar Association spoke before the legislative committee on legal affairs today in opposition to the recommitted bill increasing the jurisdiction of constables in the city of Boston. The constables as a whole were barred with being unscrupulous and with abusing their present powers. Judge Cohen and several other speakers favored abolishing their present powers in processes of attachment.

MEMORIAL SERVICES FOR RALPH NAUFFTS

BLACKS UP BRIDE TO BRING HER ON TROOPSHIP

French Girl "Stevedore" Gets Sea Sick and Dusky Hue Grows Pale

New York, April 14.—An American doughboy is a shrewd fellow but when he is in love he is unbeatable as shown by Michael Black of Muncie, Ind., a first-class boatswain's mate, who arrived here with troops on the transports K. I. Luckenback, Turrialba and Hisco.

A negro "stevedore" on board one of the troopships turned out to be Mlle. Alexandria Boyer of Marseilles, his bride-elect.

Mlle. Boyer traveled incognito for the first two days until, according to soldiers on the Luckenbach, she became seasick and so pale that her heavy coating of burnt cork failed longer to deceive the boat's officers. She made the rest of the trip in the isolation ward and was turned over to immigration officials on her arrival.

Her fiance, who arrived in the "brig," asserts the marriage, which was blocked in France by lack of time to go through the French "red tape," will be solemnized as soon as he can persuade immigration officials to release her and naval authorities to release him.

SENTENCED FOR BEATING LUNCH ROOM KEEPER

On the charge of assaulting and breaking Joseph Belsking, of Fuller street, Dorchester, proprietor of a lunch room at the Milton car barns, James P. Cawley, twenty-three, of River street, and Frederick J. Morris, twenty-three, of Cedar street, both Dorchester, were sentenced to four months each in the House of Correction, by Judge Churchill, today in Dorchester Court. Both appealed, and were held in $300 each.

FINED $25 FOR NOT CLEANING HIS CELLAR

For not properly cleaning the cellar of his house on Intervale street, Dorchester, when ordered to do so by the health department, Samuel Rabenstein, thirty-nine, of Columbia road, Dorchester, was fined $25 by Judge Churchill in Dorchester Court today. He appealed, and was held in $200. The charge was brought by Patrolman Francis Spring, connected with the health department.

BOY LOSES HAFT A HAND WITH DYNAMITE CAP

Amesbury, April 14.—Picking a dynamite cap with a pin cost Raymond Newell, twelve, son of Martin J. Newell, of this town, half his left hand, and his right eye was badly injured in the explosion. The boy is at the Anna Jaques Hospital, Newburyport, where it is feared he will lose to sight of his eye.

Amsterdam—The total casualties in the new Spartacan outbreak at Dusseldorf have been increased to 37 killed and 110 wounded. The strikers in the Ruhr district have voted to return to work on the basis of a seven-hour day.

Berlin—A counter revolutionary movement is in progress at Munich against the radical government, it is reported from that city today. Dr. Lapp, people's commission for foreign affairs, has been seized and thrust into an asylum for the insane.

GEN. COLE HEADS BOSTON SALVATION ARMY DRIVE

Camp Devens, April 14.—Brigadier-General Charles H. Cole of the Yankee Division has accepted the chairmanship of the Boston committee that will direct the drive for the Salvation Army Home Service Fund, May 19 to 26, in a national campaign to raise $12,000,000. "It is an honor and a duty that I couldn't refuse," stated General Cole in his letter of acceptance to Colonel Adam Gifford, provincial commander of the Salvation Army in New England.

33 PER CENT. DECREASE IN ANTHRACITE PRODUCTION

Washington, April 14.—Production of anthracite in the United States during the week ended April 5 was 1,272,000 net tons, or 11 per cent. less than the output of the week preceding, the United States geological survey announced yesterday. Compared with the same week of last year, there is a falling off of 33 per cent. During the same week the output of bituminous was 7,000,000 tons, a falling off of 8 per cent. in comparison with the preceding week and 25 per cent. less than that produced during the same week of 1918.

CENTRAL SQUARE SHOWS METROPOLITAN BILLS

The big new Central Square Theatre in Cambridge is offering truly metropolitan pictures and vaudeville and Cambridge people no longer find it necessary to go to Boston for their entertainment.

This week for the first three day Anita Stewart is shown in her second million-dollar production, "A Midnight Romance," a remarkable film which deals with shipwreck and adventure.

OVERRULE MOVE TO DROP FISH INDICTMENTS

Judge Sanderson Orders Case to Proceed at Trial Today

Attempts of the so-called "Fish Trust" to throw out several of the fourteen counts on which it was indicted were overruled by Judge Sanderson at the opening of the eighth week of the trial today. The trial had been suspended last week with the attorneys arguing as to whether the case should go to the jury on all the counts.

John F. Wright, attorney for Arthur Wainwright, one of the defendants, opened the arguments for the defence today by citing the indictments, quoting their law and contending that no evidence had been introduced to show that his client was culpable.

Declaring that the culmination of fish dealers to better their condition was their right just as much as that of Julia O'Connor and other telephone girls to combine for better conditions was the contention of Daniel V. McIsaac, attorney for Galen L. Stone and Frederick C. Dumaine, who followed Attorney Wright in the arguments of the defence.

Attorney Melsaac called the attention of the jury to statements of the court before the opening relative to the legal assumption of innocence, bringing out the points that simply because a man is charged with guilt it does not follow that he is guilty and that fact that he is at the bar does not make him guilty until proven so.

500 SOMERVILLE WAR HEROES GIVEN MEDALS

Five hundred Somerville boys who fought in the world war were presented with certificates and medals in the auditorium of the high school in the presence of the veterans of the Civil War and members of the Board of Aldermen and State Legislature.

Four former Mayors occupied seats on the platform. They were: Charles A. Burns, John M. Woods, Albion A. Perry and E. E. Cliff. Mayor Albion Perry was orator and the certificates were presented by former Mayor Woods while the medals were pinned on the breast of each boy by Mayor Charles W. Eldridge.

With the operation of these cars the service is materially increased between this town and Waltham. Two cars are operated.

ITALY'S CLAIMS TAKEN UP BY BIG FOUR

President Wilson to Make a Statement Concerning Peace Progress

Paris, April 14.—Italy is threatened by a revolution. Unrest is intense. Scarcity of food and fuel is largely responsible. Baron Sonnini, Italian foreign minister, threatens to return home unless the Italian claims are given more consideration at the hands of the "Big Four."

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, April 14.—Italy's demands were considered by the Big Four today, with A. J. Balfour, the foreign secretary of England, sitting in for Premier Lloyd George, who is returning to London.

The United States, it is understood, is ready to support the Russian economic position, which is a great help to Italy, where, it is reported, a revolution is imminent.

The Italian demands are very broad, and it is believed that some of the Italian delegates are convinced that they cannot get all they are asking for.

WILSON TO GIVE STATEMENT.

The announcement that President Wilson probably would issue a public statement some time during the day created a sensation in Paris. It was explained that the President believed the time ripe to explain certain matters of detail connected with the proposed peace treaty.

It was suggested in this connection that President Wilson thought it necessary to make a statement simultaneously with the statement which Premier Lloyd George is planning to make in the House of Commons in London.

Inquiries early in the day failed to reveal the definite tenor of the forthcoming statement, but it was regarded a certainty that it would enlighten the American people on some of the matters transacted by the Big Four.

Relief was expressed today that the first treaty would be completed in time to summon the Germans to Versailles by April 25.

ADRIATIC PROBLEMS.

The outlook today was better than at any other time since the opening of the conference. However, the entire situation is fraught with dangerous possibilities which might overturn everything on short notice.

The pleaded business the Italians and the Jugo-Slavs encountered on the Adriatic offers a big problem, but it is believed that an agreement will eventually be reached.

At the close of Premier Lloyd George the Council of Four met on Sunday evening, sitting from 6 to 8:20 o'clock.

All of the articles of the treaty were approved except those affecting Italy. This was made Mr. Lloyd George to hasten back to London to take up domestic questions this week. The speech he will make in Parliament is looked forward to with keen interest. Mr. Lloyd George will be back in Paris within a week or ten days.

Australians Led Opposition to the Japanese Clause

By JOHN T. PARKERSON,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, April 14.—Australian and New Zealand peace delegates led the opposition which resulted in the rejection of the Japanese demand for the inclusion of a "racial equality" clause in the preamble of the League of Nations, it was learned today. The American delegates, on the contrary, did not find the modified Japanese amendment in conflict with their views.

What effect the rejection of the Japanese proposal will have in Japan, where feeling is understood to be very strong on the subject, remains problematical, but it is regarded as certain in authoritative circles that the Japanese will not allow the matter to rest but will take it up again and spread it in a plenary session of the conference.

The latest Japanese proposal did not ask immigration rights, but asked that states making up the League of Nations should enjoy "equality of nationals."

Bohemian Border Line Only Problem Envoys Have So Far Let Alone

London, April 14 (by British government wireless).—The only problem which the peace conference has so approached yet in dealing with the questions directly affecting Germany, is that of the Bohemian border, says the London correspondent of the Observer. That is an intricate problem, raising as it does the question whether a considerable number of germans must be included in the new state of Czecho-Slovakia.

The question of Danzig evidently will be settled by setting up some kind of autonomous state in that district while including it in the Polish customs area.

As for the Saare valley the correspondent understands that President Wilson has not definitely adopted the proposal originated by Premier Lloyd-George, which would give the French the output of the coal mines, while making the district a neutral state under the guarantee of the League of Nations.

Modern Sampson Is Shorn of Locks; "More Worldly"

By International News Service.

Portland, Ore., April 14.—A halo almost perceptible seems to radiate from the long patriarchal beard of a certain religious sect.

But when shorn of their locks, as was the case of Bernhard Elmer during a night spent with denizens of the Kangaroo court, the sect member sees the world with a clearer vision, and, also, he is viewed in a more worldly light.

Elmer, who is a conscientious objector had spent the previous night in jail. As he stood at the rail he had the appearance of abject despair. Members of the Kangaroo court, who had kept him company, it was told, had acted as Delilah to the modern Samson while he slept the sleep of the righteous. They had shorn his locks, and the holy aspect he once went to wear was gone. But he saw things in a more worldly light, and so when afternoon came he again appeared in court, but this time to plead guilty to the charge of not having returned his questionnaire. Before losing his beard he had stoutly maintained that he was not concerned with the laws of man; that he had violated no law of God and that he would never plead guilty or serve a prison sentence.

HARRIS' THREE-YEAR SENTENCE AFFIRMED

Supreme Court Overrules Back Bay Man's Exceptions to Conviction in Automobile Thefts

Samuel C. Harris, who is interested in theatrical enterprises and lives at the Hotel Somerset, will have to serve the sentence of three years in Middlesex County jail, imposed by Judge Callahan of the Superior Court, for receiving stolen automobiles. Today the Supreme Court overruled exceptions taken by Harris.

Counsel for Harris had contended that the second count of the indictment did not sufficiently set out the crime of conspiracy under the common law. But the Supreme Court says the count is a sufficient indictment, charging the defendants therein named with the continuing offence of having conspired to receive stolen automobiles knowing them to have been stolen and to have been stolen feloniously.

Harris, together with others who pleaded guilty, was charged with having conspired between the first day of December, 1918, and the 1st of October, 1917, to receive automobiles which had been stolen.

A few weeks ago the Supreme Court declared void an indictment against Harris because persons who had no right there were present in the Grand Jury room when the indictment was returned.

HARVARD CHANGES WORDING OF DEBATE

The Yale debaters aroused by the charge that too much airy persiflage had found its way into the question they arranged for the triangular debate with Harvard and Princeton have caused Harvard to "backtrack" on the question, where the complaint arose. The New Haven management has wired Harvard that if they don't like the resolution as made up, to word it themselves, and the Crimson workers offer, "Resolved, that the eighteenth amendment to the United States Constitution should be repealed." Harvard is to meet Princeton in New York on May 2, and will entertain Yale in Boston the same night.

BROOKLINE LOAN DRIVE STARTS AT BREAKFAST

Brookline's Victory Loan campaign began in full force today. Last night Ernest B. Dane of the Brookline Liberty Loan Committee learned that Brookline's quota would be $4,500,000. He had a rush order of circulars printed with the slogan, "Let us put over Brookline." Cheers at the Brookline Trust Company put the circulars with subscription blanks and envelopes addressed to "Mr. Brookline Citizen at the Breakfast Table." Policemen who were off duty at 12:45 a. m. were engaged to deliver the appeals, so that before long after Brookline's quota was known the public was being asked to subscribe.

COMMERCE BODY PLANS FULL AMERICANIZATION

Americanization of foreigners is now being pushed by the Chamber of Commerce at the Hotel Brunswick, where, under the direction of Major Frank W. Tully, chairman, a plan of Americanization of every foreigner in Boston is being perfected.

Other members of the committee include John Morton, Samuel Spring, Frank V. Thompson, Dr. George W. Pepper, Alexander Whitside, Albert M. Chandler and Merle R. Griffith.

NEW HARBOR CHART, 337A, TAKES PLACE OF NO. 337

Officials of the coast and geodetic survey at the Custom House announce that a new chart of Boston harbor numbered 337A will take the place of the old one known as chart 337. Number 337A will continue to be the official chart till another new one, number 240, is issued. The latter will be drawn on a large scale and will take in the harbors of Lynn and Salem.

GRADY DEFENDS WORK OF FEE COLLECTION

Replies as "Proper City Official" to Fire Commissioner Murphy

Editor American—My attention has been called to articles published in the Boston newspapers yesterday and the day before commenting on the report of Fire Commissioner John R. Murphy, wherein he alleges that the City of Boston has lost thousands of dollars yearly because "the proper city official" has failed to collect the fees for permits the fire commissioner issues to business and manufacturing concerns whose industries require the keeping on the premises of combustible and inflammable fluids and gasses.

While this report does not identify "the proper city official," there is a plain inference which some of the newspapers pointed out that I was the "proper city official."

If this inference is one proper to be drawn from the report, I want to take this opportunity to state to the public a few facts in regard to these permits.

In the city of Boston the street commissioners issue the permits. Up to March 27, 1919, the certificates of renewal of the permits were issued from the office of the city clerk of the city of Boston. The Special Acts of 1913, Chapter 101, provide that in the city of Boston the fire commissioner shall thereafter issue these "certificates of renewal of licenses." This act took effect March 27, 1918.

From that date, until I ceased to be Fire Commissioner, on February 17, 1919, I did everything in my power to collect these renewal certificates. Mr. Edward Tierney, a clerk in the Fire Commissioner's office, installed an excellent card system, and I immediately put in a requisition with the Civil Service Commission for two clerks to assist in this work. I am quite sure that an examination of the records of my office from March 27, 1918, to February 17, 1919, will completely convince anyone that for the short period of time that this matter was under my control that the city did not suffer any appreciable loss whatever.

I would appreciate it very much if you would give this letter the same publicity that you gave your comments on the report of Fire Commissioner John R. Murphy.

Your very truly,
John Grady,
Ex-Fire Commissioner of the City of Boston.
Boston, April 14.

SALEM LAMP FACTORY OPENS WITH NEW HELP

The Hygrade plant in Salem, workers of inconsiderable lamps, opened today after being closed three months, when the employes went on strike. There were several applicants for positions. None, however, returned to their former striker, all being new employes. A meeting was held in the Leather Men's Hall in Peabody, where plans for financing the strike were put in operation.

GENERAL SHERBURNE DINNER GUEST OF HONOR

Phone Operators and Management Now Await Burleson's Word to Settle Strike Crisis

tomorrow morning at 7 o'clock affects 8,000 girls in Metropolitan Boston and New England employed by the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company and the Providence Telephone and Telegraph Company, and approximately 12,000 male electrical workers affiliated with the operators' union.

The conference at which the ultimatum of the operators was served on General Manager Driver, took place at the offices of the company at No. 50 High street. The committee who met Manager Driver and Vice-President Longley consisted of Miss Mary June, representing the operators of Metropolitan Boston; Miss Helena Smith of New Bedford, representing operators outside of the Metropolitan district; Miss Kathryn McGovern of Providence, representing the operators of Rhode Island; Hugh Kane of Boston, William Glacken of Boston, Thomas Delaney of Lowell, Leon Weir of Portland, Luke Morley of Worcester and J. Bouchard of Providence, each representing the electrical workers affiliated with the operators in those districts.

ARMY PHONES PROTECTED.

When Major Foster Veltenheimer, Signal Corps officer of the Northeastern Department, U. S. A., was asked today whether he was prepared for a strike of telephone operators, he replied that he would protect the interests of the War Department, and that they would not be adversely affected by a strike.

Major Veltenheimer said that he had a line direct to Washington and another from Washington to New York, also a direct line to the Watertown Arsenal, to the army supply stores and some departments, which are being operated independently of any telephone company or of any strike of telephone operators. He said he would, if necessary, install a line direct from Boston to the Springfield armory.

"The Motor Transport Corps could, if necessary, be called into service to get messages," Major Veltenheimer said.

MANY JOIN UNION.

All of the 4,300 operators in the Boston district will be unionized by night. It was stated today at the Boston headquarters of the Telephone Workers' Union. Nearly all of the 700 nonunionized girls had been admitted to membership by noon, it was stated.

Miss Mary June, who represents the operators of Metropolitan Boston, declared that the operators were not alarmed by alleged threats to put soldiers in the places of strikers. She said there were no skilled soldier operators at Camp Devens. "The 416th Signal Battalion, comprising most of the New England men who are telephone experts, is in France and we have nothing to fear from them," said Miss June.

"After one day of service by inexperienced soldier operators, we believe the public will be glad to see the strike settled."

Union headquarters made it plain that the telephone operators in the Post-office Building would not be called out on strike. These operators are not recognized as in the employ of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company, it was stated.

The girls at present in Metropolitan Boston are receiving a minimum of $6 a week with a maximum of $16 a week after seven years' service in the company. Their new demands ask for $10 a week minimum with a maximum of $22 a week after four years' service.

In the areas outside of Metropolitan Boston the present minimum is $4 and $5 a week with a maximum of $12 to $14.50 weekly after seven years and the new demands ask for an $8 minimum with a maximum weekly wage of $14 to $21, according to the area in which they work.

fended, must not be injured through vindictiveness or lack of understanding.

"In my conviction Germany, in the future," he said, "will require America's mental and material support to the greatest possible extent in the reconstruction of our economics which were driven to the verge of ruin by the war and the revolution.

"Germany will accept this willingly because we have no political detriment to fear from the United States. America is not making territorial demands from Germany nor loading down Germany with political mortgages which amount to a reversal of the Monroe Doctrine.

"We must reach an understanding with America on colonial questions.

"The American people are capable of giving us more than economic benefits. The new German constitution contains many parallels with the American constitution. American statesmen and jurists may give us important assistance in guiding us in its execution."

Asked who would be the German representative at Washington after peace is signed, the foreign minister answered:

"That has not been finally decided. I am not disposed, therefore, to forecast President Ebert's decision."

Governor Thanks American for Help in Mill Strike

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT
STATE HOUSE, BOSTON

Editor Boston American, Boston, Mass.

My dear sir: It was helpful to have your support of my effort to get the mill owners to submit the controversy there to arbitration.. I very much fear that I shall not be able to secure arbitration, but I am doing the next best thing of ordering an investigation by the State Board.. I want to thank you for your co-operation and tell you how much I appreciate it. Very truly yours,

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Mill Strikers Present Evidence at Strike Hearing by State Board would bring. It is only the higher paid skilled labor of the mills who are willing to accept the lower pay offered by the mill owners.

"These 15,000 to 20,000 striking textile operators are striking because they have never earned and are not able to earn now the $1500 yearly which government experts have decided is necessary for the proper support of a family these days.

"Unless we have the mill owners present themselves at the hearing and placed on the stand so that we can have a chance to cross-examine them, we will refuse to put any of the strikers on the stand in order to have them cross-examined," added Attorney Roewer.

Chairman Howland formally opened the hearing by making an earnest appeal for the co-operation of all concerned. He declared that the hearing would not end until every fact bearing on the strike situation had been presented.

OVATION TO MRS. EVANS.

An ovation was given Mrs. Glendower Evans when the Boston society woman appeared in the big auditorium of City Hall and took her place among the strike leaders. Warm receptions had already been given Ime Kaplan, the secretary of the general strike committee; Frank Long, Rev. H. L. Retzel of Boston and Frank Coco, the Italian strikers' leader.

Paul R. Clay, a Lawrence attorney, appeared for the mill interests. There was a notable assembly of millmen, including Walter Parker, agent for the Pacific Mills; Ellis Laycock, agent for the United States Worsted Company; Charles Kitchen of the Washington Mills; George E. Kunhardt, head of the Kunhardt Mills; John Mercer, agent for the Washington Mills; W. M. Lamont, agent for the Wood Mills; James Boothman, agent for the Ayer Mills, and J. W. Clapp, agent for the Prospect Mills.

Others present were Winthrop Marvin, secretary of the National Association of Woolen Manufacturers, and Judge Fred Chandler, representing a committee of Lawrence citizens supposed to be disinterested in the affair.

Scarcely two hours before the meeting of the State Board, Samuel Bramhall, chairman of the general strike committee here, was arrested on Essex street, charged with interfering with a police officer.

The arrest of the leader caused a small riot. It was the only semblance of disorder of the morning. The crowd that gathered was quickly dispersed and Bramhall taken to the police station under a heavy guard.

Bramhall was arrested by Patrolman John Mahan of Lowell, who claimed that he sought to interfere with him in his efforts to disperse a disorderly mob. The strike leader protested loudly against what he termed the "Cossack methods" of his captors.

PICKET LINE REINFORCED.

The picket line was reinforced today by thousands of operatives who had not been out for weeks, and the morning parade was led by Mrs. Glendower Evans of Boston, who returned to the city, after writing her defiance to City Marshal O'Brien, who had warned her to leave the city.

MRS. ELIZA A. WESCOTT OF MALDEN DEAD, AGED 60

Mrs. Eliza A. Westcott, wife of Charles A. Wescott and mother of former Captain Oliver D. Wescott of Tufts College football fame, died at her home in Malden yesterday aged sixty-one years. She was a native of Albany, Me., but active in church work and had lived in Malden forty years. She leaves a husband, five sons and two daughters. The funeral will be Wednesday and the burial in Forestdale Cemetery, Malden.

MARINE CORPS CAPTAIN MARRIED IN NEWPORT

Newport, R. I., April 14.—Captain Joseph Montgomery Swinnerton, Marine Corps, was married here to Miss Lilah Mae Van Buren of Waterbury, Ct., a daughter of Mrs. L. B. Gray of that city.

Captain Swinnerton has been ordered to Santiago, Cuba. The ceremony took place at the rectory of Trinity Church, the Rev. Stanley C. Hughes officiating.

Mrs. Swinnerton enlisted in the navy as yeowoman shortly after the beginning of the war. Captain Swinnerton has been at the torpedo station for the past fifteen months and was in charge of the marines in the Victory parade.

LAY CORNERSTONE OF CHURCH IN ARLINGTON

The cornerstone of the Church of the Saviour (Episcopal) at No. 21 Brattle street, East Arlington, was laid with impressive ceremonies.

The ceremony of laying the stone was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Love, the diocesan missionary, who made the principal address. Others who took part in the exercises were the Rev. William Pettus of St. James' Church, Somerville; the Rev. Charles F. Hagton, and the rector, the Rev. Taber Hall of St. John's Church, Mr. Bixby. During the ceremonies a campaign was launched to raise $2,000 to complete the church building. It is hoped to have the edifice ready for occupancy June 22.

BANNWART SUIT AGAINST LODGE IS SETTLED

No Trial in Action for $20,000 Damages for Alleged Assault by Senator

Counsel in the Lodge-Bannwart assault case have reached an agreement and the case will not go to trial. A statement is to be made by the attorneys explaining the end of the case. Senator Lodge was to have appeared in court to day as defendant in a $20,000 damage suit brought against him by Alexander Bannwart for alleged assault in the lobby of the Senate at Washington on April 2, 1917.

That the case would not be tried was announced definitely today at the office of the counsel for Senator Lodge. Whether Senator Lodge was to make a settlement was Bannwart, who recently appeared in his army uniform on the picket line at the Lawrence strike, could not be learned. It is expected, however, that the joint statement the counsel will reveal the basis for the settlement.

IN PACIFIST DELEGATION.

Bannwart was one of the delegation of Ford Hall pacifists who went to Washington in April, 1917, to protest against the entry of the United States into the war. The party interviewed Senator Lodge and it was during this interview that the now famous altercation between the Senator and Bannwart occurred.

In his suit Bannwart accused Senator Lodge of having him arrested and confined in a Washington police station without "cause or authority" and with having made false and malicious charges against him.

Revealed for the first time is the correspondence that passed between Senator Lodge and Bannwart a month after the affair in the Senate lobby occurred, the news of which was published in newspapers all over the country on the same day as the declaration of war.

LETTER TO LODGE.

Bannwart addressed the following letter to the senator:

May 12, 1917.

My Dear Senator Lodge—I have let our little affair rest till the immediate uproar was over, but you must, of course, realize that the statement that came out apparently from you and from a man of your prominence was extremely injurious to me.

I feel there can be no question as to the actual facts, viz., that the discussion, while doubtless annoying to you because of your difference of conviction, was nevertheless entirely respectful up to the point when you said:

"All those working for peace are cowards."

Thereupon I retorted, "It's the war party who are cowards."

You then lost your head and cried, "You are a damned liar."

Whereupon I replied, "I might return the compliment."

Immediately you struck without warning and returned the blow.

I feel that your sense of justice should impel you to confirm that this is a correct statement of the regrettable affair because, while we both in the heat of passion may have done what neither is particularly proud of, you are incapable in cold blood of allowing a fellow mortal to be perhaps irreparably injured by permitting a bad matter to appear infinitely worse than it is.

Trusting you will welcome this opportunity to testify to the truth, I am, respectfully,

ALEXANDER BANNWART.

LODGE'S REPLY.

Senator Lodge replied as follows:

May 14, 1917.

Dear Sir—Senator Lodge has received your letter of May 12th and directed me to state that your version of what was said when you called at his office is an erroneous one and not in accordance with the actual facts.

Very truly yours,
E. T. CLARK, Secretary.

Countess Magri, (Mrs. Tom Thumb) Now Almost Blind

Middleboro, April 14.—Lavinia Warren Bump, famous in the amusement world for two-thirds of a century under the name of Mrs. Tom Thumb, wife of the late General Charles Stratton, also a famous Lilliputian, and who later became the wife of Count Magri, the Italian dwarf, has become nearly blind at her old home, the James Bump farm at Warrenton, between this town and Bridgewater. She is seventy-seven years of age.

Her sister, Minnie Warren, wife of Commodore Nutt, died many years ago and lies buried in the family lot at Nemasket Hill Cemetery in Middleboro. Commodore Nutt passed away a few years ago in New York.

Mrs. Sadie G. Phipps and daughter, Miss Olive, of Onset have recently joined Countess Magri as companions.

FORMER RUSSIAN ENVOY TO RETURN TO NEWPORT

Newport, R. I., April 14.—After an absence of three seasons Mr. and Mrs. George Bakhmeteff, formerly Russian ambassador to this country, will again spend the Summer at Newport, residing at the "Stone Villa," owned by Mrs. William Fitzhugh Whitehouse.

This estate was formerly the James Gordon Bennett mansion, and is opposite the Newport Casino. Bakhmeteff was known as the best dressed diplomatic man in Europe, "Tommy" Suffern Tailer not excepted.

ROXBURY GIRLS HURT BY AUTO IN JAMAICAWAY

Miss Margaret Buckley, nineteen years old, of No. 17 Schiller street, Roxbury, suffered fractures of the left hip and two ribs, when she was knocked down by an automobile in Jamaicaway. Her younger sister, Mary, who was with her, sustained cuts and bruises about the legs. Both were treated at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

ALBERS HAS PLAN FOR LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Praises Lodge and Others, While Conry Criticises Them in Joint Debate

Under the auspices of the Second Society of Universalists, Joseph A. Conry, Russian consul, and Dean Homer Albers of the Boston University School of Law, discussed the League of Nations yesterday afternoon, at the Fenway Theatre.

Dean Albers outlined a plan of his own for a League of Nations, of which any nation could become a member by signing. His plan would include a great court, including three Judges from each nation, to which would be referred all international disputes not voluntarily settled.

VICTORY FOR DISSENTERS.

He claimed that inclusion of the right to withdraw from the league the Monroe Doctrine and immigration issues in the latest draft of the covenant was a victory for Senator Lodge and other dissenters from the President's program.

"America can thank the Lord for such men as Henry Cabot Lodge, Elihu Root, Philander Knox and William H. Taft," he declared.

Discussing opposition to the League of Nations, Mr. Conry said: "It is a curious coincidence that all of those men who flew into a fine frenzy at Mr. Wilson's suggestion of a League of Nations have been, as a rule, distinguished for their antagonism and antipathy to Mr. Wilson during the course of the war."

Senator Lodge, Mr. Conry said, "is a very able man of vast experience," adding that the Senator's "views are very extravagant and his fears very much excited. If the Senator has allowed his imagination to become overheated his mental perspiration caused thereby has blinded his usual perspicacity," he said.

CRITICIZES SENATOR LODGE.

Mr. Conry declared Senator Lodge's speech to be "devoted to fault finding, captious criticism and cavilling at form, without any helpful hints as to how the league should be created."

"In view of Senator Lodge's oft-repeated statement that 'politics and politicians should be kept out,' it must have been in the line of real constructive statesmanship if Senator Lodge had drafted a resolution notifying the President of such changes as he and his colleagues desired, in order that they might give notice to the world that they would support the President," Mr. Conry asked.

CAPE CANAL TRIP TO N. Y. STARTS TODAY

Metropolitan Line to Resume Northern Sailings Next Week

The first passenger trip to New York via Cape Cod Canal this season took place today when the Metropolitan line resumed its Summer service from Boston.

Although the line was operated last season without accident or incident there was much nervousness expressed because of the rumors of German U-boats hovering off the coast. Since the war is now over and danger no longer possible it is expected that the Metropolitan line will enjoy the most prosperous season in its history.

The sailing from Boston took place at 5 p. m. and the boat docks at Pier 13, North River, at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Not only is the Metropolitan service to be resumed, but the lines are also to be operated next week to Bangor, Portland and St. John, N. B. (including Eastport and Lubec, Maine). The line to Yarmouth, N. S., which is also operated by the Eastern Steamship Company, has already resumed service.

On the Bangor Division, beginning Monday, April 21, there will be three trips a week from India Wharf to Bangor and intermediate landings, with connections at Rockland for Bar Harbor and the landings on the Mt. Desert and Blue Hill lines.

The Portland arm of the service, with the Steamship Governor Dingley, which the government refurbished, is due to resume service on Tuesday, April 22, with a schedule of three trips a week, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. The leaving time is 6 p. m. The reopening of this division will be specially appreciated by the travelling public, as keen disappointment was felt last Fall when the line was closed.

The Steamship Calvin Austin, which was requisitioned by the government as a troop-ship, will make its maiden trip on Monday, April 21, at 10 a. m. The schedule calls for two trips a week, on Mondays and Fridays, from Central Wharf to St. John, N. B., stopping at Eastport and Lubec, Me.

WOULD RENAME CIRCUIT SQUARE FOR SOLDIER

Request has been made by City Councillor Watson to rename Circuit square, Roxbury, in memory of Lieutenant Harry Hanley of the 51st Infantry, who died at a base hospital in France from wounds last year. Lieutenant Hanley was a Roxbury boy, and for many years lived in Circuit square, where his mother now resides. The Roxbury councillor has an order in the City Council today asking that the junction of Warren street, Warren place and Harrison avenue be renamed Eugene Galligan square, in memory of Lieutenant Eugene Galligan, Company K, 39th Infantry, son of Dr. E. T. Galligan of Roxbury. Lieutenant Galligan was killed in action overseas, September 8, in the battle of Vesle.

BROCKTON BABY DROWNS PLAYING WITH BROTHER

Brockton, April 14.—Minnie Bornstein, three years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bornstein, of No. 25 Bond street, was drowning in Salisbury's brook, near the Court street bridge, when she fell while with her brother.

FIND CAMBRIDGE MAN'S BODY IN CHARLES

The body of Robert F. Turnbull, sixty, of No. 43 Fifth street, Cambridge, found in the Charles River basin on the Boston side of the Charles River bridge, was identified by Turnbull's son-in-law, Joseph Stanton, of the same address.

The body caught in the propeller of a motorboat and the owner reported it to the Metropolitan police. It had been in the water twenty-four hours. Turnbull was a carpenter.

He had been sick with influenza and had not regained his normal health. It is believed he committed suicide.

BOAT CAPSIZES OFF WINTHROP; THREE SAVED

Three men, thrown into the water when their small sailboat capsized off Winthrop, struggled three-quarters of an hour before they were rescued. One of them, Thomas O'Neil, fifty years, of No. 54 Medford street, Charlestown, was almost exhausted, and his son, William, eighteen years old, and George Bunstead, eighteen years old, of Tremont street, Charlestown, had hard work to keep him afloat until aid came.

HISTORY of the YANKEE DIVISION

By HARRY A. BENVELL

GENERAL EDWARDS' STORY OF GREAT BATTLE

This is the sixteenth instalment of the "History of the Yankee Division," which began in the Sunday Advertiser-American on March 30. Major-General Edwards paid a tribute to the division in the first instalment. The story of the remarkably quick organization and debarkation of the division followed. It was the first complete unit to land in France from the United States.

The story of the sufferings during the Winter months in the training areas and General Edwards taking his entire division into the front line trenches followed. How the Yankees defeated the Germans in their first skirmishes in "No Man's Land" is a thrilling tale.

The 26th fought and won their first big fight at Apremont and followed this by defeating some of the crack German shock troops at Seicheprey. Then came the orders to rush to the aid of the Marines at Chateau Thierry. The official story of this great battle and how the Yankees helped to halt the Germans in their drive on Paris is a magnificent page in New England history.

General Edwards, in the last instalment printed in yesterday's Sunday Advertiser-American, tells his own story of the great troop movements in the biggest battles of the war in which the heroic Yankees fought.

CHAPTER XV.

JULY 23.

13—Our experience in the rush forward had shown the futility, without undue losses, of attempting a head-on attack of Epieds and Trugny. The open wheat fields gave too good a sweep for the enemy's machine guns. I, therefore, determined to throw in a wedge on the road through the Bois de Trugny, and was confirmed in this decision by the verbal instructions of the Corps and by F. O. No. 20, 1st A. C., in accordance with which I confirmed my previous verbal orders by F. O. No. 59, 26th Division, 22 July, 22:30 o'clock. These orders demanded the penetration of the enemy's line by a regiment in each division, with exploitations by the entire division. The following message was sent to the 51st Infantry Brigade and copies to other commanders for their information:

Hq. 26th Division, American E. F.

22 July '18, 21:10 o'clock.

Message No. 2.

To Commanding General, 51st Infantry Brigade.

1. Inclosing 4 copies of Field Orders No. 20, c. s., Headquarters, 1st A. C., for his information.

2. The 101st Infantry is designated to carry out the attack.

3. Orders will issue later.

By command, etc.

14. The 52nd Brigade had suffered a good many casualties as well as the 102nd Infantry, and I ordered Major Greenway and his detachment, consisting of two and one-half companies of 2nd Bn., 101st Engineers (with headquarters at Etrepilly), to move forward and take the position previously occupied by the 104th Infantry and exploit the thrust of the 101st Infantry, extending to the right to gain liaison, anticipating that this thrust would outflank, as it did, the resistance at Trugny and Epieds. Major Greenway encountered some remaining machine gun nests southwest of Epieds and kept them actively engaged, struck out to the right in front of a portion of the 102nd Infantry on his right and gained contact with the 101st Infantry when its leading elements fell back from its advanced positions in the Bois de Trugny. He was sent orders to take defensive position and hold ground gained that night.

15. In the meantime, after a thorough artillery preparation, the 101st Infantry attack was launched at 6 o'clock and the eastern part of the Bois de Trugny gained before noon. (Map "G" illustrates this phase, showing also the position of remaining troops held in readiness.) Good reports of the success of this thrust continued to reach division headquarters—that they had overcome all resistance which consisted mainly of machine gun fire and high explosive shells. Therefore, complete plans had been laid out for an additional push the next morning by this regiment, both northeast and northwest, and to move up available troops so that when it became necessary to leap-frog through, the reserve battalion of this regiment, or other troops, could push forward and force the pursuit. At 2 o'clock that night, report was received that the leading battalion of the 101st Infantry had been subjected to a withering machine gun fire from the front and on both flanks and from machine guns in trees, with much gas; that the leading elements were forced to withdraw, leaving a considerable number of wounded in their front which they hoped to get out that night and evacuate them to the rear in safety. This announcement prevented a continuation of the artillery preparation in the following morning.

16. At 12:30, July 23, F. O. No. 21, 1st A. C., were issued reinstating F. O. No. 19 (directing the assumption of the entire corps front by the 26th Division) and placing the 111th Infantry (58th Brigade) at the disposal of the commanding general, 26th Division, for 23d July only, as division reserve. The 51st Infantry Brigade was directed by F. O. No. 60, 26th Division, 23 July, 16 o'clock, to take over the entire zone of action of the 26th Division, and the 52d Infantry Brigade was ordered to assemble preparatory to relieving the 167th Division, two battalions of the 111th Infantry being placed at the disposal of the 52d Brigade to assist in accomplishing this purpose. However, F. O. No. 22, 1st A. C., 23 July, 19 o'clock, directed an attack by both the 26th and 167th Divisions, necessitating the revocation of F. O. No. 60 by F. O. No. 61, 26th Division, 23 July, 20 o'clock.

17. About 18 o'clock, while at the front impressing brigade and regimental commanders with the necessity of sparing no men or ounce of energy in the pursuit of the enemy on the following morning, I received a telephone message that G-3 from the corps was waiting at my headquarters with important orders. I immediately returned to my headquarters, which I reached, as I recall, at about 18:30, and received letter No. 189 G-3, Headquarters, 1st A. C., July 22, stating that the 56th Brigade of the 28th American Division was placed at my disposal, and that I was directed to utilize this brigade and place it in line without delay in order to comply with current orders of the 6th Army Commander to drive line forward. The orders further directed that as soon as the 56th Brigade had taken over the line from the 52d Brigade of my division to proceed promptly to the reorganization of the 52d Brigade with a view to utilizing the battalions or regimental units as fast as they could be reconstructed to carry forward continuously the fronts line of my sector. I had before ordered two battalions of the 111th Infantry of this brigade to be placed at the disposal of the 52d Brigade to assist in pushing forward his line and relieving the 52d Brigade. As soon as I received this order I announced all the brigade commanders, including Brigadier-General Weigel, commanding 56th Brigade, and directed him to relieve the 52d Brigade, and take command of the left sub-sector so that he could push forward in the morning.

18. With the above letter I received a letter from the Corps' commander directing me not to commit the 56th Brigade or elements thereof into the attack until they had had time to make reconnoissance. This seemed to be in conflict, and I, therefore, directed my chief of staff to take the matter up and he reported to me between 20 and 21 o'clock that the provisions of this last letter should obtain.

19. At 22 o'clock I received the report of the check of the leading elements of the 101st Infantry. Being forced to continue the thrust through the Bois de Trugny until I could find out whether the wounded reported in front of this element had been evacuated, I communicated to the chief of staff of the corps and was informed by him that the push forward must be made by the 56th Brigade and that the army orders would prevail.

JULY 24.

20. Having again summoned all the brigade commanders, as well as Brigadier-General Weigel, I directed the latter to move forward at 10 hour (7 o'clock), promising him complete artillery preparation in the subsector. He was also instructed to send a battalion of the 112th Infantry to the commanding general, 51st Brigade, to move up through the Bois de Trugny and pass through the leading elements of the 101st Infantry, and continue the pursuit in that subsector as well as [illegible]. This procedure was confirmed by F. O. No. 62, 26th Division, 23 July, 23:30 o'clock.

21. General Weigel told me that his men had not had anything to eat for two days and had no emergency rations; had been marching in nights; that his 112th Regiment was in corps reserve, and being unfamiliar with the ground, it would be difficult for him to do so. I replied that he must overcome all these difficulties and must move out as ordered, this being in accordance with my orders and the known wishes of the corps commander. I ordered Major Greenway, who knew the ground, to report to him so that the colonel of his 111th Infantry would have the advantage of Major Greenway as a guide. I directed my chief of staff to accompany the battalion of the 112th Infantry that had been turned over to Brigadier-General Weigel with orders to explain the mission and push them forward with all haste. I furthermore ordered another of my trusted staff officers, Major Alfonte, to accompany the leading elements of the 111th Regiment on the left. These two officers, as well as Major Greenway, did everything possible to push this pursuit. In the morning at daylight Brigadier-General Weigel reported to me that in spite of the aid of all my officers he had not been able to get his battalions up and get them off at the H hour and that he had had to delay the attack. About that time, through liaison with the 167th Division, I learned that after artillery preparation and the advance of the infantry they had found none of the enemy on their front, and by the employment of cavalry patrols they were moving out ahead of General Weigel's left. I immediately declared off the divisional artillery preparation and directed him to send out strong cavalry and to rush and get in contact with the enemy by every means possible, to go out without any caution and get in touch.

22. I afterwards, being without cavalry, ordered my motorized divisional machine gun battalion to move out, gain them the right of way, and by all expedition to reach the objective, the Jaulgonne-Fenn-Varinelle road. During the evening the advanced elements of this division, although later in the night were the first to reach this road and this objective, where severe machine gun fighting was encountered. The other elements were abreast those of the French; the division occupying a line in the [illegible] de Fere (as shown on Map "H").

23. F. O. No. 23, 1st A. C., 24 July, directed the relief of the 26th Division and 56th Brigade by the 42d Division. F. O. No. 63, 26th Division, 24 July, 15:15 o'clock was issued in accordance therewith, the 51st and 54th Infantry Brigades being directed to continue the pursuit until relieved. The Serpenoise plateau was designated as the next objective by F. O. No. 24, 1st A. C., 24 July, and by F. O. No. 64, 26th Division, 24 July, 20:30 o'clock.

Now for a few thumb-nail facts and figures about the Yankee Division.

Its casualties totalled 11,365. Of this number 421 were officers and 11,-634 enlisted men. The total killed in the division was 1,780.

The 26th Division served 210, or an aggregate of seven month, in the front lines—longer than any other division in the A. E. F.

In nine months of service, beginning February 6, 1918, the division SPENT ONLY TEN DAYS IN A REST AREA.

The 26th Division was organized in Boston August 22, 1917, from units of the National Guard troops of New England and increments from the 76th Division, which trained at Camp Devens.

The Yankee Division was thrice cited in orders issued by General Headquarters of the A. E. F. It has a citation from the French army, a citation from the French Army Corps and ten commendations for gallantry in French divisional memorandums.

CAPTURED 3,149 PRISONERS.

It captured 3,149 prisoners of which sixty-one were German officers and 3,087 enlisted men. The captures by sectors were: North of Toul, 6 officers, 43 privates; northwest of Chateau Thierry, 3 officers, 244 privates; north of St. Mihiel, 48 officers, 2,520 privates; north of Verdun, 5 officers and 288 privates.

In its Chateau Thierry operations, July 15-26, the Yankee Division captured six large cannon, three light-er calibre, seven trench mortars and twenty-three machine guns. In the St. Mihiel drive, September 12-13, it captured two large pieces of artillery, ten of lighter calibre, eight trench mortars, 109 machine guns and forty-two rifles.

In all it captured thirty-seven kilometers of ground from the Germans as follows: Chateau Thierry, July 15-26, gained 17.5 kilometers; St. Mihiel salient, September 12-13, gained fourteen kilometers; north of Verdun, October 11-November 11, gained 5.5 kilometers, showing how slow was the progress and the desperate character of the country fought over in the closing days of the war.

TABLE OF CASUALTIES.

The division table of casualties:

	Officers	Men	Total
Killed	169	1,611	1,780
Wounded severely	199	5,587	5,786
Wounded slightly	51	5,768	5,819
Gassed	1	1,268	1,269
Missing	19	279	298
Men taken prisoners	2	122	124
Total	421	11,034	11,365

It took a prominent part in the following battles:

Bois Brule, April 10-13, 1918.
Seicheprey, April 20-21, 1918.
Houbert Plantation, May 27, 1918.
Xivray-Marvoisin, June 16, 1918.
Chateau Thierry, July 18-25, 1918.
St. Mihiel, Sept. 12-13, 1918.

The operations of the Yankee Division in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne fighting are given in the following order received at Division Headquarters at Ecouvez:

"Headquarters First Army,
American Expeditionary Forces,
"Field Orders, } "France,
"No. } January 22, 1919.

"Addenda Corps Memorandum No. [illegible] Series 1919.

"1. Pursuant to telegraphic instructions from G. H. Q., the 26th Division, upon the establishment of its headquarters in the Le Mans area, is relieved from duty with this army.

"The 26th Division, joining early in August, 1918, participated in the following operations of the First Army:

ST. MIHIEL OPERATION.

"The division attacked on the front south of Les Eparges on September 12, driving the enemy from St. Remy and Donmartin and this date and reaching Vigneulles early on the 13th. It then turned east and occupied and held the line of heights about Hannonville-Thiaucourt with advance detachments near Doncourt, until October 7-8.

MEUSE-ARGONNE OPERATION.

"The division joined the French 17th Corps east of Verdun on October 17th and took over the Neptune sector. The division held this sector until the signing of the armistice on November 11, 1918. During this period the division engaged in the following local attacks in addition to defensive engagements incident to holding this sector:

"October 23—Against ridge between Cote 281 and 246.

"October 24 and October 27—Against Bois d'Ormont and Belleau Bois.

"November 19—Against Ville-devant-Chaumont, Herbelois, Bois la Ville and La Chaume.

"The army commander takes this occasion to express his appreciation of the services of this division while a part of the combat forces of this army, and wishes it God speed upon the final phase of its participation in the activities of the American Expeditionary Forces.

"By command of Lieutenant-General Liggett:

"H. A. Drum, Chief of Staff.

"Official: H. F. Loughry, adjutant general."

TRAINED IN SCATTERED UNITS.

The Yankee Division trained in scattered units at the following camps:

Division Headquarters and Headquarters Troop, Boston.

101st Field Signal Battalion, Boston.

101st Infantry, Framingham.

102nd Infantry, New Haven, Ct.

102nd Machine Gun Battalion, Framingham.

102d Infantry, Westfield.

104th Infantry, Westfield.

The first units of the Yankee Division sailed from Hoboken, N. J., on September 7, 1917, and landed in St. Nazaire, France, on September 21, 1917. The division remained in the training area with headquarters in Neufchateau about four months, during which period details of troops were assigned to constructing hospitals, building telephone lines, serving as labor detachments, aided in organizing sections in the service of supplies and otherwise shared in preparation for the main army which began to arrive after January 1, 1918.

The division entered the front line in the Chemin des Dames sector, February 6, 1918, and was brigaded with the French, in a position north of Soissons. It remained there until March 21. On April 5 it entered the "La Reine and Bouqe sector," north of Toul, and remained in the front line, holding the first divisional front in the American army, until June 28.

"On July 20 it entered the "Pas Flirt sector" north of Chateau Thierry, which it held until July 23. On September 5 it entered the "Haut and Trayon sector" in the St. Mihiel salient, holding it until October 8, and on October 14 entered the "Neptune sector," north of Verdun, and held it until November 14, three days after the armistice, when by easy stages it advanced to the rest area in Montigny Le Roi, which it left for the Le Mans embarkation area late in January.

DIVISION ACTIVE.

A foot note attached to the table of time spent in the various sectors says:

"The dates of entry and withdrawal are the dates on which the command passed in or from the line of division. This table does not in reality show the exact time which all units of this division served in line. There were several instances where regiments and brigades entered the line several days in advance of the passing of command to the division. Also, during the nine months' service from February 6, 1918, the 26th Divison spent only ten days in a rest area (Montigny-le-Roi on the battle of St. Mihiel) the balance of the time being consumed in moving from one sector to another, or in support position awaiting entry into line."

The following localities were occupied by the Yankee Division while in the front line:

Chemin des Dames sector—Chemin des Dames, Fort de Marmaison, Chavignon Valley, Laffaux Valley, Pinon Woods, Cheval Mort Hill, Aisne River, Rouge Maison Cave.

Le Reine and Bouqe sector—Montsec, the German artillery there will be long remembered; Bois Brule (Apremont Woods); Seichesprey including Remierre and Jury Woods; Xivray-Marvoisin and Dead Man's Curve.

Chateau Thierry sector—Bois Belleau, Hill 190, Bourescbes railway station, Trugny Woods, Epieds, Vesle river (Artillery Bridge) and Vaux.

St. Mihiel sector — Les Eparges, Vigneulles, Hattonchatel, Dommartin and Bois de St. Remy.

Argonne-Meuse sector—Bois Belleau, Hill 240, Bois d'Ormont, Bois d'Hatmont, Bois d'Ayaves, Les Houppy Bois, La Wavrille, Bois de Ville devant Chaumont and Cote de Talou.

A tough old list and one which the men of the Yankee Division had burned into their memories—those of them who survived.

MRS. PHOEBE A. HEARST, PIONEER AND PHILANTHROPIST, IS DEAD

WOMAN LOVED BY THOUSANDS A VICTIM OF PNEUMONIA

San Francisco, April 14.—Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst died at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at her residence, the Hacienda del Pozo de Verona, Pleasanton.

Pneumonia following an attack of influenza was the cause.

Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst were at her bedside when she passed away.

Mrs. Hearst was taken ill on March 26. The severity of the attack and her advanced age caused her physicians to summon her son immediately from New York.

Upon the arrival of Mr. Hearst, Mrs. Hearst improved somewhat. She shared in the confidence of members of her family and friends that she would completely recover her health, entering into the arrangement of her Summer program with interest and zest.

END COMES PEACEFULLY.

A relapse came on Wednesday of last week. Mrs. Hearst continued to fail rapidly and the end came quietly and peacefully.

Funeral ceremonies will be held on Wednesday. There will be a service in the morning at Pleasanton for members of the family.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the friends of Mrs. Hearst will assemble at the ceremonies to be held at Grace Cathedral, in California street.

Bishop William Ford Nichols will officiate. The body will then be taken to Cypress Lawn Cemetery to repose in the family mausoleum beside the body of her husband, Senator George Hearst.

The honorary pallbearers will be Benjamin Ide Wheeler, president of the University of California; Charles Steben Wheeler, Mayor James Rolph, Jr., Dr. W. W. Campbell, I. Hellman, Sr., Garrett McEnerney, Governor William D. Stephens, John A. Britton, Senator James D. Phelan, William Magee and Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur.

SURVIVED BY ONLY SON.

Mrs. Hearst is survived by her only son, William Randolph Hearst, and his five sons, George, William Randolph, Jr., John, Randolph and Wilson, by a brother, Elbert G. Apperson, a niece, Mrs. Anne Apperson Flint, and a nephew, Randolph Apperson.

Mrs. Flint arrived from the East to be with her aunt a few days before she died.

Loved by Rich and Poor, Mrs. Hearst's Charities Were Broad as the Sea

By WINIFRED BLACK.

Phoebe Apperson Hearst, the greatest woman California has ever known—is gone.

She had been ill for some time but she never gave up the fight of living until the very last.

Always and always she woke with the sunshine of trust in her heart and it as only yesterday that those about her realized that she could not make the fight much longer—the brave fight, the strong fight of a brave and gallant mate.

The end came to her as she had lived—quietly, simply and with a notable tranquility.

HUNDREDS WILL WEEP.

All over the world today hundreds of people will weep to-day that she is gone, for she was the friend of all the world, loved from sun to sun as it is the fortune of few women to be.

Some women would have been old at her age.

She was seventy-six years young.

Those who knew her well heard her say a thousand times that life grew sweeter and broader and deeper for her every hour she lived.

Her house was always full of friends and her heart was full of gratitude for them, their comfort and their happiness—but she was never to busy to stop everything and talk with some homesick boy come over from the university to tell her his troubles or too occupied to give an hour or so of her crowded life to some happy girl who came smiling to tell her of her joy. The heart of this beautiful and gracious door to tell some happy secret to one she knew would rejoice with her.

You didn't need any great pile of letters of introduction to meet Mrs. Phoebe Hearst—no matter how poor you were or how little known or how dull or how unimportant—if you had a true story to tell, a real bone to voice an honest trouble to be relieved, you could always get to her somehow.

LOVED BY CHILDREN.

Every child who ever looked into those blue eyes of her loved her at the first glance, and not all the splendor of her magnificent home could put awe in the heart of little children she gathered around her as a fairy godmother gathers the children in the other fairy tale.

I know a little boy who heard a woman telling once about a splendid party Mrs. Hearst had given for the Daughters of the Revolution. The woman who told the story expatiated on the magnificent place and the splendid dinner, the luxury of every detail and the little boy's eyes grew round with anxiety.

When the visitor who told the tale had gone the little boy sat down at a pretty desk Mrs. Hearst had given him and wrote her a letter telling her that he wished she would not spend so much money on company for if she kept on doing it he was afraid she would go to the bank some day and find all her money gone.

The little boy's handwriting was not very good—he was only seven years old—but when the letter reached Mrs. Hearst and she read it aloud to her great dinner parties again and again and laughed, but there were tears in her kind eyes when she laughed and she always said in her sweet voice, "You see I am not without a good practical friend to advise me." He is gone, too, the little boy who wrote the letter to Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, but he loved her and was afraid she was doing something that would make trouble for her—I wonder if he was waiting on the other side of the dark river to slip his chubby hand in hers and tell her how glad he was to see her again.

A DEAR FRIEND GONE.

How many there must be who crowded to the bank of that mysterious stream we none of us have seen but all must cross some day to meet and greet her with deep love and joyous welcome.

Boys and girls, old men, a little tired of living, women whose hearts have not beat in youthful joy for many years, students of the university, teachers of all kinds, all up and down the broad State of ours, rich and poor, the great and the humble—her are all sad today for their dear friend has gone.

Her charities were as broad as the sea and as silent as the quiet night.

She gave and gave and gave, and with every gift, no matter how humble, went a loving thought.

She didn't talk much about religion—her whole life was a prayer and a thanksgiving and a blessing.

Endowed with a brilliant mind and a broad vision that was almost prophetic, acquainted as she was with the world and the great and mighty of the earth, she yet was as simple in all her ways as any simple woman.

With nothing to think of but her home and her children, she never forgot that she was not always a rich woman and she was just as eagerly interested in the trousseau of a little school teacher somewhere in the country as she was in the splendid wardrobe of some gay-hearted young debutante.

YOUTH HERS ETERNALLY.

She would shop all day to find exactly the right dress for the little school teacher's going away gown and she would hunt just as indefatigably for a splendid jewel of exactly the right color to gladden the light heart of a rich man's bride. Youth was hers eternally—in her heart and all about her.

She kept her house full—crowded to the very door—with young people, and no one so quick as she to see a little cloud on the youthful face or to notice a note of trouble in a young voice, too unsophisticated to keep its owner's secret.

Money and time and counsel and love—with what a generous hand she gave them to all the world.

But in her heart of hearts she kept a sanctuary for her own—the home of her home and the flesh of her flesh, the pride and the joy of her life.

What will they do without her in the great house over there in Pleasanton, now that she has gone?

Green is the grass upon the hills she loved, bright bloom the flowers in the garden that was her delight, but she who loved every inch of California almost as she loved her only child is not there to mark again the splendor of the sunset or the silvery glory of the argent moon.

While violets are blue, roses red and lilies fair, let's lay them all at those little tireless feet that were never weary. Poppies and lupin, too, the simple wild flowers of the fields and of the woods, gather a wreath of them to lay above her quiet heart and while still they are, the little hands that gave so generously.

How quiet it is, the generous heart that beat with love and tender kindness for all the world.

Farewell, great heart, good-by brave soul, wise counsellor, true friend.

CALIFORNIANS PAY TRIBUTE TO MRS. HEARST

the art gallery of the Panama Pacific International Exposition, hostess at large for the Pacific Coast, was an exemplar of all that is gracious, generous and practical in a woman citizen.

"She is mourned by the State and nation.

"As the donor of the Mills College Campus plan and as the founder and promised endower of the chair of American History at Mills, she has been an inspiration to the women's college of the West."

BY DR. DAVID S. JORDAN.

Dr David Starr Jordan, president emeritus of Stanford University, said:

"I have known Mrs. Hearst for a long time, and it is with personal sorrow as with a sense of public loss that I speak of her passing. Her work for education is well-known. It was sincere. It was wisely considered and it was executed with painstaking devotion. Mrs. Hearst held the larger vision. She gave opportunities to students who had few and she enlarged the opportunities of teachers. Her aid was directed to those things which most needed it. It was not a hobby but a purpose. Art, science, letters, the improvement of social conditions—are all things which have known her."

"The death of Mrs. Hearst removes from us one who has long been considered the leading woman in California," said Edward Dobeson Taylor, former mayor of San Francisco. "She deserved this estimation for she had all the qualities necessary to sustain it. She had wealth, it is true, and she gave of this wealth in abundance with the greatest thoughtfulness and wisdom. But she had far more than wealth. She had character of the highest and ability of the greatest. Besides all this she possessed in the fullest measure a graciousness, a gentleness and a dignity that made her presence a benediction, and, now that she has gone, will make her absence a most lamentable void."

RABBI MEYER'S TRIBUTE.

"I am very much grieved," declared Rabbi Martin A. Meyer when informed of the death of Mrs. Hearst. "It will be expression of all who knew her that California has lost one of its noblest friends. The loss to me is a great one, because of a very warm personal friendship which existed between us.

"Mrs. Hearst represents the best type of womanhood, the type which expresses itself in service to society.

"To me she represents the true pioneer California mother, unafraid of difficulties and with a vision of the extent and possibilities of Western life."

"In the death of Mrs. Phoebe Hearst the State has lost the most distinguished woman in its history," declared Garret McEnerney, attorney and regent of the University of California. "Her life has so conspicuously abounded in womanly virtue and noble endeavor of both private and public character that she long ago became and remained to the end a universally recognized symbol of human helpfulness and Christian womanhood."

"It was as a fellow member of the board of regents of the University of California that I take Mrs. Hearst's death as a great personal loss," said I. W. Hellman, regent of the University of California.

"The State and the nation have also suffered by her death. She was always ready to assist any worthy project, and all the good she has done will never be known."

"TRULY NOBLE WOMAN."

Professor W. W. Campbell, director of the Lick Observatory, said: "Mrs. Campbell and I have lost our best friend. Mrs. Hearst was a truly noble woman. We are grieved beyond expression. The many years of close association between my family and Mrs. Hearst will be the tenderest memory of every one of us."

Rudolph J. Taussig, a regent of the University of California, said:

"The State of California has lost a most wonderful woman, but the greatest loss is to the University of California, whose best interests she had always at heart.

"Mrs. Hearst was helpfulness itself. For many years on the board of regents of the University of California I witnessed her work and the fervor she put into everything she undertook to do.

"She gave advice seldom, but co-operation always. I have known no man who did not listen to her words as words of wisdom. She was a most indefatigable worker, the finest of women, a veritable tower of strength and good will. The loss is irreparable."

"This is a great shock, for I had not been informed that the condition of Mrs. Hearst was serious," said James Kennedy Moffitt, a regent of the University of California. "Mrs. Hearst's passing is a loss to everyone on the coast as well as the university. She was a warm friend, a benefactor and an adviser. Her influence on the board of regents as a woman was far above what any man could give."

TYPOS ADOPT RESOLUTIONS.

When word of the death of Mrs. Hearst was received at the composing room of the Examiner, the members of the Examiner Chapel of the San Francisco Typographical Union No. 21, at once met and adopted the following resolution of regret and condolence;

"Whereas, upon this thirteenth day of April, 1919, it has pleased an all wise Providence to take from the realm of human fellowship a deeply respected and much loved friend of all men, Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst, and

"Whereas, Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst was known in many parts of the world for bringing sunshine by acts of benevolence, generosity and public spirit in various directions, many of which never reached the eye or ear of the public, therefore

"Be it resolved by the Examiner Chapel of San Francisco Typographical Union No. 21, that we do hereby extend our most profound sympathy to Mr. William Randolph Hearst and the members of his family in their bereavement."

LUDEN'S MENTHOL COUGH DROPS GIVE QUICK RELIEF

For Constipation! Physic Purge or Laxative?

Everyone now and then becomes constipated, and millions are chronically in that condition. The perplexing question arises—what to use.

Purgatives and cathartics are drastic and usually cause a reaction. Saline waters are rapid in action but do no more than empty the bowels.

Just as certain an effect, and certainly a much more pleasant one, can be obtained by the use of a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin sold by druggists under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It acts gently, without griping. It is an especially ideal medicine for children, women, old people and others who find purges too powerful.

Only a teaspoonful is required, and by morning the movement is free and complete. A bottle in the house is insurance for the whole family against constipation, indigestion, headaches, flatulency and other digestive ills.

The druggist will refund your money if it fails to do as promised.

PRICE AS ALWAYS

In spite of greatly increased laboratory costs due to the War, by sacrificing profits and absorbing war taxes we have maintained the price at which this family laxative has been sold by druggists for the past 26 years. Two sizes—50c and $1.00.

Make the Pennies Bigger

When James Buchanan was President and tall beaver hats were in vogue; when gentlemen wore broad cravats and ladies wore hoop skirts the pennies they tossed to children were as big as quarters. But the cart-wheel coppers your grandfather got for keeping his lace collar clean were not as big in buying power as the pennies of today.

A penny then might buy a pastry, or ten of them take one to the Fair, but your great-aunt and great-uncle couldn't have gone to a movie at any price.

Your great-grandfather may have driven the fastest horse in the country and paid a tidy sum for it. But the price of a stable of thoroughbreds would not have bought him a fliver.

Sixty years ago the ladies could go shopping for dry goods and buy silks that would make you green with envy, linens that were linens and broadcloths that beggar description. But what their favorite store did not have they usually got along without.

You can pick up your daily newspaper and in fifteen minutes you can know what the different shops are offering in fabrics, patterns, varieties and qualities that great-grandmother never dreamed could be gathered together under any conditions.

Times have changed, and so have merchandise and business methods. One of the influences that has helped to bring about so much of change, that has helped to multiply opportunities and increased the spending size of our pennies is advertising.

Every merchant, every manufacturer knows that advertising materially reduces selling costs by increasing the demand for and the distribution of the products of hundreds of thousands of mills. Indeed many of the things we count today as necessities or simple luxuries could not be made and sold at their reasonable prices except as advertising has created a broad market for them, making millions of sales at little prices and little profits.

And so you owe very much to advertising. You owe much to the people of yesterday who have read and been influenced by past advertising and so have made possible the economies and varieties and wide distribution of merchandise that you enjoy.

You owe present advertising a thorough reading. A greater familiarity with advertising, with advertisers and advertised merchandise makes continually for the increasing size of your pennies.

VICTORY BONDS AT 4 3-4 P. C. INTEREST

Business Delighted With Terms and See Success for N. E. in Drive

Secretary of the Treasury Carter Glass, through the Federal Reserve Bank, today made official announcement of the terms of the Victory Liberty Loan. The Victory Liberty Loan campaign will begin a week from today and incidentally a competition will spring up between States, cities and communities all over the country for subscription honors. Boston at present holds the record, as during the last loan she subscribed per capita more than any other city in the United States.

The amount of the Victory Loan issue will be $4,500,000,000, but it will be oversubscribed, according to present indications. People all over the United States are anxious to back up Uncle Sam in winning and finishing the war.

SEE SUCCESS FOR LOAN.

Just as the invincible 26th Division upheld its end in the great war, so the people of New England will subscribe $375,000,000 and thereby uphold their end of the big war burden. In the last Liberty loan New England's quota was $500,000,000 but the people of the six States subscribed $632,000,000.

Boston will be asked to subscribe a little over $20,000,000. In the fourth loan Boston's quota was $27,000,000. The amount of the Victory loan will be three-fourths of the last loan, the reason for the one-fourth reduction in the present quotas is because the government feels that the desired amount of $4,500,000,000 will be sufficient to wind up the war for America.

The rate of interest in the Victory Liberty Loan is 4¾ per cent. The notes will mature in four years. One great attraction of the Victory Loan is the convertible feature. By this the subscriber can at any time during the life of the note convert it into a non-taxable note, or back again into a taxable note if he should desire. This gives a combination of advantages never before enjoyed in a government security.

HAS CONVERTIBLE FEATURE.

The amount asked for by Uncle Sam is much smaller than supposed and, according to experts, the fact that no over-subscription will be received not only insures scientific distribution of the notes, but clearly indicates that the great financial strain upon the United States Treasury will soon be materially relieved.

The rate and convertible features of the Victory Liberty Loan answer the demand of the man who wished the coming loan to be put out on a "business basis," N. Penrose Hallowell, New England Liberty Loan Committee chairman, asserts. The man who wishes a security which will not go down in price will be satisfied with the Victory Bond or note, he said, as it is inconceivable that a short term note, interchangeable between a taxable and tax-exempt security, and bearing such a liberal rate of interest should not sell at or near par.

Business men feel that the government has hit the nail on the head by meeting the popular demand for an attractive loan. The Victory Loan is suitable for every class of investors.

MAYOR PLEASED WITH TERMS.

"I shall be disappointed if New England's entire quota is not taken by investors, leaving the national banks free, as they should be to attend to the commercial business of the community," Chairman Hallowell said. "This money is to be used to pay the debts of the government for its huge war preparations which helped to end the war many months before the world believed such a thing was possible. Our work is not done until these debts are paid."

When the terms of the Victory Loan were made known to Mayor Peters he said:

"I am highly pleased with the terms of the Victory Loan and it is very gratifying that the Treasury Department finds it necessary to issue four and a half billions instead of the six billions we had been led to expect. What is most important about the new loan in my opinion is that this new note is not likely to fall off any in price.

"The new notes, bearing high interest rates maturing in only four years and with the non-taxable feature, guards the issue against decline in price. Secretary Glass is to be congratulated on offering a security which will attract all investors, both large and small."

Mrs. F. Lee Higginson, a member of the Women's National Liberty Loan Committee and Federal Reserve chairman for New England, says of the loan:

"I expect our women's committees all over New England to help the men bring the Victory appeal to every inhabitant. Liberty Loans have been the most splendid lessons in thrift ever bestowed upon us, and no matter how much personal inconvenience and saving have been caused by them, they have been worth it all."

WOMEN WORKERS ACTIVE.

"The amount of the loan, which is $1,500,000,000 less than the last loan, indicates that the government expenses are much less than they have been for some months and that they are expected to decline to such an extent that the Secretary of the Treasury feels that the needs of his department can be financed by short-term obligations," said Charles A. Morse, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank and New England Victory Loan Committee chairman. He added:

"The rate of interest is liberal for a four-year obligation of the United States government, and by offering two kinds of notes should appeal to every class of investor. To those investors who want a higher rate note the interest is 4¾ per cent., free of all local taxes and normal income taxes, and those who prefer can subscribe to a note carrying 2¾ per cent. free from all taxes except estate and inheritance taxes. As these notes may be converted each into the other as required, the widest possible market is assured for any notes that must be sold, and will go far to maintain the market of the notes at par."

RUTH SHEPLEY ASKS: WHAT'S PROHIBITION?

Actress Admits Native City Is Providence, but, Why Speculate?

By FRED J. McISAAC.

It's a funny thing but when I sit down to write about Ruth Shepley the first things that I remember are her possessions, her dog "Edward" and her automobile, "Elysium."

I can't describe the dog very well because he came from behind, passed through my legs just as I was getting introduced, disturbed my equilibrium and ate my equanimity, and vanished into the actress' dressing room, but my impression is that he has a low freeboard, is very fuzzy and of an impetuous disposition.

HAS BLUE AUTO.

The automobile is not quite so small as a Pullman car, and a bit shorter than a Cunarder. Its color is blue and its attitude is rather haughty. It annoyed the Park square policeman because Miss Shepley left it squarely upon the crossing outside the theatre, which is against the law or the customs, and it positively refused to move despite the combined efforts of the minion, Fred Wright, manager of the theatre, and Signor Di Pesa, the factotem of the institution.

Accordingly Miss Shepley was extracted from her interview and requested to remove her cerulean playmate, which she did very deftly.

Afterwards we resumed.

"I am awfully sorry but I immediately get foolish when anybody comes to interview me," said Miss Shepley with a disturbing grin. If you have seen her play Eve—that it—Eva in "Adam and Eva," you will remember that she is a dangerous looking blonde. Seen close to with her makeup off she is worse than that, a regular T. N. T. blonde, which as everybody knows is twenty times as perilous as gunpowder.

BORN IN PROVIDENCE.

"Where were you born?" I inquired, "and when?"

"Providence. None of your business."

"I know it, but sometimes if you put the question suddenly, the truth pops out."

"I am not ashamed of it, but ten years from now somebody might dig up your interview, and why take chances?" said Miss Shepley.

"Do you like Providence as well as George M. Cohan?"

"Fully." (Providence Journal please copy.)

"How do you like playing Eva?"

"Oh, it's a sweet little part. My ambition in life is to grow fat so that I can do colored mammys and boarding-house keepers, but in the meantime I play ingenues."

"What do you think of the peace conference?"

"My opinion couldn't be printed."

"How about prohibition?"

"What is prohibition?"

"That's what we would all like to find out."

"May I ask a few questions?"

"By all means?"

"Why do newspaper people interview actresses on things they don't know anything about?"

"To see what they will say."

"In what they say important?"

"Sometimes. It's often interesting."

"Hum," commented Miss Shepley. "Wouldn't you like a ride in my automobile?"

"How long have you been driving?"

"Just today."

"No, thank you; perhaps next season."

"Fraid cat. I'll bet you can write an interview out of what we talked about."

"Bet I can," I replied. But I am not sure who won.

MASSIVE SUPPLY OF FISH FOR HOLY WEEK

American Prepared to Sell Unlimited Quantities at Cost Price

Fish at cost during Holy Week, when more fish is eaten than during any other single week in the year.

That's what the Boston American is doing for the public of New England through the Boston American Fish Stores, and through mail orders sent to Alden A. Mills, No. 101 Tremont street. Thousands and thousands of dollars will be saved to the public of New England through these agencies.

Fresh haddock, freshly smoked finnan haddie, and a wide variety of fine frozen fish are being offered every day this week at five cents a pound in the string of Boston American Fish Stores scattered about Greater Boston.

MANY VARIETIES OFFERED.

In Worcester, Lowell, Nashua and other places ten miles or more from Boston, the same fish are being sold at six cents a pound.

Persons living in sections not covered by Boston American Fish Stores may send money orders made out to Alden A. Mills, No. 101 Tremont street, for the following fish which will be shipped by American Express, the express charges being paid by the purchaser.

Boneless salt codfish in ten pound boxes at 20 cents a pound.

Whole Newfoundland cured salt codfish in thirty pound boxes at 15 cents a pound.

Freshly smoked finnan haddie in thirty pound boxes at ten cents a pound.

PROFITEERS BOOST COD.

Salt codfish is selling today in some Boston stores as high as thirty-eight cents a pound, while fresh haddock is bringing as high as twelve cents, and the price of fresh cod runs up to twenty cents a pound.

In addition to offering these fish to the consumer at cost, the American, through the establishment of its "fish at cost" stores has succeeded in bringing down the price of fish in other stores.

This is the first year in a decade that profiteering retailers have not dared to raise the price of fish during Holy Week.

Many persons observe every day this week as a fish day. In the interests of health and economy they could do the same every week in the year. Mr. Mills and the Boston American Fish Stores are offering food for thirty people for from $1 to $2.

Hotels and restaurants, serving hundreds of New Englanders, are giving their customers the advantage of food at cost by patronizing the American Fish Stores, and sending money orders to Mr. Mills.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

HERE is where the big argument starts. Ty Cobb has fallen. The great Georgia Peach, the player who has never been approached either in dope or on the ball field, save once, and then by Tris Speaker, now figures second to the mighty Texan among the centre fielders of the American League.

There will be howling and argument over this, but the dope proves it. True, Speaker figures but eight points ahead of the peerless Peach. But he gains the lead. It is not the fault of Cobb, nor is it the virtue of Speaker, that is responsible for this upturning of precedent.

The truth is that the difference is not so much in the men as in the teams. I was forced to figure that Cobb must go to bat in twenty games nearly a hundred times against the ultra strong pitching staff of the Indians, while his rival will get twenty cracks at the comparatively weak pitchers of the Tigers.

The figures do not prove that Speaker will outhit Cobb on the season, but they do prove that this cutting down of Cobb's normal advantage over him makes Speaker more valuable to his team. I have been compelled to deduct some points from Cobb's standing because of wear and tear and the yearly increase of the time it takes him to get started.

Last year it looked for five weeks as if he never would get started, and this season may be worse. Speaker can go further back after a fly ball; can throw better and has an advantage in several other points, besides playing in more games per season than Cobb does in these later years.

Hap Felsch, figured upon a basis of coming back to the White Sox in a contented mood, and with his injured feelings salved, ranks third, leading Milan, who is slowing up year after year.

• • •

Places Walker Ahead of Barrow's Regular

BELOW them we find Walker and Strunk, Walker leading because of the exceeding thinness of his punch. At the bottom we must record the Yankees.

Huggins has a big problem of arranging his outfield material to the best advantage. When he sorts the outfield material so as to get the best results the figures will show an improvement all round. He has a lot of material, but it doesn't fit so well to the job.

In the National League we find another freak of figures with Pittsburgh and Cincinnati tied for the lead and New York only ten points behind.

Carey is perhaps entitled to the benefit of the doubt, because his all-round work is better balanced than Rouch.

A great ball player he is, and one who has improved steadily through hard work and attention to business. His great asset, of course, is speed, and he has learned to use it to best advantage.

Kauff is not the great ball player he is alleged to be by his New York admirers, although an extremely good one.

His army experience has not helped him as a player. That much I know from intimate reports, but he probably will suffer from the setback only for a short time and then fall into the McGraw way of playing the game.

• • •

Paskert of Cubs, Ranks Well Up to Front

LOOK at old Dode Paskert. He is still up there with the leaders in spite of his years. He holds speed longer than Mathuselah did and he is playing better and smarter ball under Mitchell than he ever did in his life.

Paskert achieved a reputation for being "bone" under several managers, chiefly because when he made a mistake he did it when it showed up the worst rather than because he made many blunders.

The class of the center fielders in both leagues is higher than that of either the right or left fielders, due, of course, to the fact that Speaker, Cobb, Rouch, Felsch and Milan all play that position.

The Braves make, perhaps, the worst showing of any among the centre fielders. Stallings seems unfortunate in his selection of outfielders, anyhow. Powell and Kelly also suffer in the figures because both slumped badly last season and lost points.

GREEK HOPPING.

WE always figured that Europe was the dizzy side of the pond, but the dope shows that the tax-gnungled U. S. A. is also doing considerable waltzing above the collar button.

A Congressman wants to erect a monument to the sapp who invented elbow spaghetti.

The government can't grab the war tax on that $89,000 Stock Exchange seat until the lawyers decide whether it is an amusement or a Five banjits in raincoats trim St. Looey bank for 58,00 smackers, light opera.

That's some dizzy exhibition on the cranial trapeze. But what grabs the brown derby in the early Spring vertigo contest is the annual Greek dancing epidemic among our wealthy debutantes of the better class.

All the stylish nose-powdering asylums of learning have entered soprano teams in the unequal contest, which will be held at some place not yet designated on the police blotter.

• • •

Classical Capilliary Tremors.

THE Greek or hippodrome brand of shaking the wardrobe is danced with the accent on the first syllable. It's a lovely way of passing the Summer, but a poor way of passing the cops. The college flappers are rehearsing their Grecian tableau and doing very well on a Hooverized diet. They dance the fragile ankle and elbow style of hopping on the lawn like a grasshopper on a wire door mat. All the candidates for the Greek varsity crew are anxious to earn their letters, and will probably get them as soon as the police grab their addresses.

• • •

THE Greek style of dancing is so simple that we wonder why Simon wasted his time fishing in a pail when he could have grabbed off some easy velvet as a dancing instructor. Greek dancing is easy to learn but hard to cure.

• • •

The Recipe.

THE symptoms are so characteristic that a Greek dancer can easily be spotted in a riot of other maniacs. The fingers are wiggled like a cross-eyed old lady knitting sox for a bow-legged soldier, while the toes play an imaginary typewriter.

The costume is one of those formal affairs worn by Ghunga Dhin in the poem of the same name. The method of transportation is the skip-stop system. Just skip along until you stop. Voluntarily or by request. The dance is more spectacular when performed by ladies within the draft age, but dancers don't be rash.

Although nobody knows what a Greek dance is all about, everybody agrees that the sentiment is excellent.

The most popular dance in the one where you gyrate around the terraced amphitheatre waving your bunions at the sky as if you are afraid it is going to rain and gum the parade.

JOE WOOD'S WIFE SICK AND HE'S OFF FOR HOME

Serious illness of his wife at Parker's Glenn, Pa., has compelled Smoky Joe Wood to quit the Cleveland Indians' training camp at New Orleans. Wood expects to rejoin the tribe when it plays in Chicago in May. Elmer Smith will play right field during Joe's absence. Manager Fohl announces.

Lynchburg, Va., April 14.—With the opening of the National League season only a few jumps away, the Braves are on the anxious seat as regards the makeup of their infield for the big doings in Boston Patriot's Day.

Nothing has been heard from Herzog since he departed to have his tonsils scientifically stored up against his aching spine.

Red Smith has a mighty sore heel, which will have to be treated up quite a bit before he is ready to show his real form. The chances are the hitting star of the club will be sent along to Boston in advance to let the doctors prep him a bit.

Smith's absence will be felt in the three games which remain with the Tigers. Had he been in Saturday's game, there were several spots where the Detroit pitchers would have been worked differently with a low ball fed in prospect.

However, Stallings has plenty of subs handy, and welcomes the chance to let everybody get a touch of real competition before the regular campaign is on.

As most of the ball yards in this part of the world are built just this way they are supposed not to be, the Georgian hasn't had an opportunity to train gardeners in the sun field.

This little matter is giving him as much worry as anything else. He's satisfied that he will have the edge in pitching strength, when the real scrapping starts.

He has four pitchers now, who are in the best possible shape—Rudolph, Nehf, Northrop and Scott. All four are good hurlers and will be winners from the start with any kind of fielding back of them.

DORCHESTER HIGH SCHOOL.
FOOTBALL AND BASEBALL STAR

ARTHUR DAVIDSON, brother of Claude Davidson, played on the Dorchester High football eleven last Fall and is also a member of the baseball team.

This is his last year and he is planning on entering Massachusetts Agricultural School next Fall. He also has an appointment for West Point, which he is going to accept the following year.

SQUAD OF 80 OUT FOR PLACES ON TECH CREWS

The Tech crews, numbering sixty freshmen and twenty sophomores, are rapidly getting into shape. Although the bulk of the material is "green," Coach Pat Manning is having excellent results. The 1921 and 1922 crews race in connection with Field Day, May 2. The two temporary eights have been picked, composed of the following:

Freshmen—1, E. A. Ash; 2, M. L. Fisher; 3, F. L. Riley; 4, R. J. Hill; 5, C. W. Gooding; 6, C. W. Bryden; 7, R. H. Hemenway; 8, P. Rawers; cox., H. W. Coughlin. Sophomores—1, F. Perry; 2, R. W. Haskell; 3, W. H. Rose; 4, D. T. Brown; 5, J. S. Barber; 6, E. A. Lloyd; 7, Pelkins; 8, L. D. Jacobson; cox., T. O. Davidson.

Duffy Lewis Clouts .316

Duffy Lewis, in twenty-three cracks at Wilbert Robinson's mugers, in the Yankees-Dodgers' series, batted .316. Pipp, .315, was the only regular topping him.

Coach Parker's Brookline High team certainly made a great start in the Suburban League. With all the dope against it, it came through with a victory over the strong Medford High team. Mallowney pitched well and hit timely; in fact, was the big noise. They are already calling him the Babe Ruth of the league.

• • •

Coach McDonald's Cambridge Latin team also made its debut in the Suburban League with a victory. The Cantabs worked without an error and proved to be strong at the bat and on the bases.

• • •

Bart Flaherty of the Commerce did some heavy hitting Saturday, making four hits out of as many times at the bat. But he couldn't beat Middlesex School single handed.

• • •

The hitting in the Suburban League games Saturday was very tame. Three teams got six, while two got only two.

• • •

Captain Frankie Hill of the Noble & Greenough team has six veterans back and it looks as if the outfit will make its rivals travel fast to keep up with it. The nine's only weakness is behind the bat.

• • •

Ed McGourthey, president of the 1919 class at Dorchester High and a member of the baseball team, has received an appointment to Annapolis and will go there next Fall.

• • •

Art Thurston, captain of the Gloucester High baseball team has only one veteran on deck. The loss of Warren Peterson and Charley Carr, star battery last year, is bound to be felt.

Frankie Hill of Noble & Greenough has won his letter in four sports: football, baseball, track and hockey.

SHORE BEING GROOMED TO OPPOSE RED SOX

Tall Ernie Shore worked the last four innings for the Yankees in their final game with the Brooklyn Dodgers and made Wilbert Robinson's hard-hitting crew go runless. He held them to a single hit. The New York correspondents in Florida with the Yankees look for Shore to get in the opening championship series with the Red Sox; in fact, some of them are picking the attentuated right-hander to work inaugural day.

DAVY ROBERTSON IS BARRED BY ED BARROW

By JACK CONWAY.

Richmond, Va., April 14.—Stuffy McInnis will play as good ball on first for the Red Sox this year as he did back in 1914, when he was at his best for the Athletics, if his work in the South is a criterion of what may be expected of him.

McInnis' playing in the series against the Giants was brilliant. Chase is classed as the greatest first baseman in the National League, and without discounting Hal's great work in the least, it can be said that McInnis performed to better advantage.

Babe Ruth and the rest of the noble band were down to rub elbows with a team of hankers today. The National State and City Bank has an outfit which it believes can make things interesting for any man's ball club.

Joe Boehling is in the lineup of the bank line. The Cleveland flinger doubts whether he will be able to perform in the big show this year, as a result of trouble he is having with one of his hips. He was forced to come home after spending a week at the Indians' training camp in the South.

Joe was booked to play in the outfield today. He asserted that his trouble is not of the nature which bothers him when chasing flies or batting.

Barrow refused to permit the Hankers to play Davy Robertson of the Giants in the outfield. Robertson, who is one of the real stars of baldom, has failed to report to McGraw.

He would like to be with the Senators, but as Barney Dreyfuss declined to grant waivers on him, he must pastime in the National League or remain idle.

Carl Mays, who was permitted to go to his home at Manchester, Me., to settle his insurance claim, following the destruction by fire of his home, was due to rejoin his mates here today.

COMMISSION TO BE DISSOLVED, SAYS BAN

Chicago, April 14.—As a result of the Baltimore club of the defunct Federal League securing a verdict of $240,000 against organized baseball, it is Ban Johnson's forecast that the National Commission will be disbanded; the majors will sever all relations with the National Association of Minor Leagues and the tenday and reserve clauses will be taken out of the players' contracts.

Johnson states that an appeal will be taken to the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia and, if necessary, to the Supreme Court of the United States.

"The verdict of course, is a blow to baseball," President Johnson said, "but we are not particularly distressed, as it was nothing more than we expected under the circumstances.

"We were bound to appeal, no matter what the amount of damages involved was.

"We do not want to be charged with operating in restraint of trade; neither do we want the charge of conducting a monopoly hanging over us.

"We can see a ray of sunshine because of the fact that we can appeal. If the verdict had been brought in our favor, we would have been denied that privilege.

"You would have thought that we were on trial in Russia. We were charged with all manner of crimes. The attorneys for the plaintiffs referred to me as the 'Czar of baseball' and gave the impression that we were on the threshhold of a penitentiary."

BOXING NEWS AND GOSSIP

Ringside's Selections

Joe Eagan to beat Marty Cross.
George Alger to beat Shaver O'Brien.
Belgian Brown to beat Kid Greene.
Frankie Toronto to beat Sammy White.

According to Joe Eagan, Dorchester fashion plate and candidate for title honors in the middleweight class, Boston will have another ring champion before the summer is over. Joe modestly admits he will play the stellar role in bringing the title to the Hub.

Eagan is matched with Marty Cross at the Fenway A. A. tonight and expects to start his campaign for the 158-pound crown by dropping the New Yorker for the full count.

Shaver O'Brien meets George Alger in the semi-final of ten rounds. Kid Greene and Belgian Brown will go eight rounds, and Sammy White and Frankie Toronto hook up in the curtain raiser.

Al Shibert and Chick Hayes are to battle at New Bedford on the holiday night. They have agreed to come in at 124 pounds ringside. Lowell has Phinney Boyle booked with Benny Valger.

Tommy Tuohey of Patterson, N. J., who ranks high up in the lightweight class, will make his initial appearance before a local gathering in the twelve-round bout with Frankie (Young) Britt at the Grand Opera House tomorrow night.

Tuohey has been going great guns all year, having met and defeated some of the best in the busy 135-pound class. Recently Tuo fought Ralph Lundy at Portland, and press accounts favored the Skeeter Skater for the honors.

Joe Melanson and Larry Burns, in the semi-final of ten rounds, in a match in which local followers are displaying great interest. Burns, one of the most promising boxers in this section a few months ago, is said to have rounded into his old form. Two six-round bouts, Frankie Walsh vs. Freddie Madden and Leo O'Brien vs. Frank Rappoto, completes a well balanced card.

The Wakefield A. A. puts on a show tonight at Curley's Hall. Here's the card: Harry Loring of Charlestown vs. Young Jim Crilley of Lawrence. Young Dubois of Wakefield vs. Young Delmont of Lawrence, and Young Duffy of Wakefield vs. Young Coulter of Reading.

Rabbit Due Tomorrow; He's Bringing Monk and Parrot

Rabbit Maranville will be in Boston in time to get in the two holiday games with the Dodgers. He's bringing a parrot and a monkey with him. Ye-wakkum!

The Braves' peppery shortstop, in a letter to John Dooley, well-known man-about-town and assistant Winter Leaguer, states in a steaming through the billows on the good ship Pennsylvania, which is due to dock in Brooklyn tomorrow morning.

Here's some choice excerpts from the Rabbit's breezy letter to his close pal, Bro. Dooley:

"I will be discharged right away, for the skipper promised that I will get my discharge and be able to get back in the game.

"I am bringing along with me a pet poll parrot and a monkey which I corralled in the last port. Already I have taught the bird to yell, 'Attaboy' and 'Hurray for the Braves,' and, believe me, the bird will go big all along the route.

"I will see you at the opening games April 19, and if the rest of the bunch feel the way I do we will start right off with two marks in the winning column."

Two Economical Hints

IF a fruit or meat pie is placed in a tin of boiling water when it is in the oven to cook the fruit juice or gravy will neither boil over nor soak into the crust. When baking potatoes place them in hot water for fifteen minutes before putting them in the oven. They will bake in half the time and so effect a saving in gas.

THE DARK STAR

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

THRILLING ROMANCE OF AN AMERICAN GIRL

One of the Newest and Best Novels of Intrigue, Love and War From This Famous Author's Pen, Full of Vivid Human Interest

Copyright, 1917, by Robert W. Chambers.

"FOLLOW the porter," she said, "and tell me what brings you here, my gay young friend. You see I am wearing the orchide you sent me. Do you really mean to add yourself to this charming gift?"

He told her the story of Ruhannah Carew as briefly as he could; at her stateroom door they paused while he continued the story, the Princess Mistchenka looking at him very intently while she listened, and never uttering a word.

She was a pretty woman, not tall, rather below middle stature, perhaps, beautifully proportioned and perfectly gowned. Hair and eyes were dark as velvet; her skin was old ivory and rose; and always her lips seemed about to part a little in the faint and provocative smile which lay latent in the depths of her brown eyes.

"Mon Dieu!" she said, "what a history of woe you are telling me, my friend James! What a tale of innocence and of deception and outraged trust is this that you relate to me! Allons! Vite! Let us find this poor, abandoned infant—this unhappy victim of your sex's well-known duplicity!"

"She isn't a victim, you know," he explained.

"I see. Only almost—a—victim. Yes? Where is this child, then?"

"May I bring her to you, Princess?"

"But of course! Bring her. I am not afraid—so far—to look any woman in the face at five o'clock in the morning." And the threatening smile flashed out in her fresh, pretty face.

When he came back with Rue Carew, the Princess Mistchenka was conferring with her maid and with her stewardess. She turned to look at Rue as Neeland came up—continued to scrutinize her intently while he was presenting her.

"Miss Carew—I believe I know exactly what your voice is going to be like. I think I have heard, in America, such a voice once or twice. Speak to me and prove me right."

Rue flushed.

"What am I to say?" she asked naively.

"I knew I was right," exclaimed the Princess Mistchenka gaily. "Come into my stateroom and let each one discover how agreeable is the other. Shall we—my dear child!"

Had Been Crying

When Neeland returned from a visit to the purser with a pocket full of British and French gold and silver for Ruhannah he knocked at the stateroom door of the Princess Mistchenka.

That lively personage opened it, came out into the corridor holding the door partly closed behind her.

"She's almost dead with fatigue and grief. I undressed her myself. She's in my bed. She has been crying."

"Poor little thing," said Neeland. "Yes."

The Princess opened her wrist bag and he dumped in the shining torrent.

"You may go in, James."

They entered together; and he was startled to see how young she seemed there on the pillows—how pitifully lifting were the childish throat, the tear-flushed face lying in its mass of chestnut hair.

Cadomene the "Miracle Medicine"

Many People Have Written of the Seeming "Miracles" Performed by Cadomene Tablets.

They Are Only Recommended for Worn-Out, Impoverished, Nervous People, But—

People have testified that they have been cured of rheumatism, headache, stomach disorders, pains of neuralgia, etc., through the use of this great medicine-tonic, Cadomene Tablets. It only means that the Cadomene has helped to build up the strength of all organs and then nature has a chance to help the cure. Therefore, if you are tired, sluggish, and your feet and hands are cold—if you have any nervousness over-much you by sleeplessness, irritable temper, and your heart flutters, while dizziness and trembling seize you at times, you may ward off serious consequences and become full of vigor, red blood and health for every vital organ of your body. Mr. J. W. Biggs of R. R. No. 5, Fort Worth Tex., writes: "I am using Cadomene Tablets and find them to be good in every way for an old man of 86." F. W. Barbour, 1217 Pine street, Denver, Colo., writes: "I have taken one package of Cadomene and it has put me on my feet and I feel fine."

Cadomene builds up nerves and bodily vigor. All druggists.—Adv.

"Goodbye, Rue," he said, still awkward, offering his hand.

"I will."

"Then——" He smiled; released her hand.

"Thank you for—for all you have done," she said. "I shall not forget."

Something choked him slightly; he forced a laugh:

"Come back a famous painter, Rue. Keep your head clear and your heart full of courage. And let me know how you're getting on, won't you?"

"Yes. . . . Good-bye."

"Do you—like her a little?" he whispered.

"I do, my friend. Also—I like you. I am old enough to say it safely, am I not?"

"If you think so," he said, a funny little laugh in his eyes, "you are old enough to let me kiss you good-bye."

But she backed away, still smiling.

"On the brow—the hair—yes; if you promise discretion, James."

"What has tottering age like yours to do with discretion, Princess Nala?" he retorted impudently.

"A kiss on the mouth must of itself be discreet when bestowed on youth by such venerable years as are yours."

But the Princess, the singularly provocative smile still edging her lips, merely looked at him out of dark and slightly humorous eyes, gave him her hand, withdrew it with decision, and entered her stateroom, closing the door rather sharply behind her.

Back at Studio

When Neeland got back to the studio he took a couple of hours' sleep, and, being young, perfectly healthy, and perhaps not unaccustomed to the habits of the wolf family, felt pretty well when he went out to breakfast.

Over big coffee cup he propped up his newspaper against a carafe, and the heading on one of the columns immediately attracted his attention:

ROW BETWEEN SPORTING MEN

Eddie Brandes, Fight Promoter and Theatrical Man, Mixes It With Max Venem.

A WOMAN SAID TO BE THE CAUSE; AFFRAY DRAWS A BIG CROWD IN FRONT OF THE HOTEL KNICKERBOCKER

Both Men Badly Battered, Get Away Before the Police Arrive

Breakfasting leisurely, he read the partly humorous, partly contemptuous account of the sordid affair. Afterward he sent for all the morning papers. But in none of them was Ruhannah Carew mentioned at all, nobody, apparently, having noticed her in the exciting affair between Venem, Brandes, the latter's wife, and the chauffeur.

Nor did the evening papers add anything material to the account, except to say that Brandes had been interviewed in his office at the Silhouette Theatre and that he stated that he had not engaged in any personal encounter with anybody, had not seen Max Venem in months, had not been near the Hotel Knickerbocker, and knew nothing about the affair in question.

He also permitted a dark hint or two to escape him concerning possible suits for defamation of character against irresponsible newspapers.

The accounts in the various evening editions agreed, however, that when interviewed, Mr. Brandes was nursing a black eye and a badly swollen lip, which, according to him, he had acquired in a playful sparring encounter with his business manager, Mr. Benjamin Stahl.

And that was all; the big town had neither time nor inclination to notice either Brandes or Venem any further; Broadway completed the story for its own edification, and, by degrees, arrived at its own conclusions. Only nobody could discover who was the young girl concerned, or where she came from or what might be her name. And, after a few days, Broadway, also, forgot her, and went amid the tarnished tinsel and raucous noises of its own mean and multifarious pre-occupations.

To Be Continued

The Easter Bride

By Rita Stuyvesant

ONCE more we are going to see the real church brides in satin and lace and old-fashioned orange blossoms, for many returning heroes will reap the reward of victory by claiming the hand of his lady fair. No more hasty marriages and sad separations, for now one may delight in a before-the-war wedding with all its attendants, from bridesmaids down to the cunning little flower girls who strew one's path with roses. Clouds of tulle, chiffon, rare laces and satin all conspire to make the Victory bride the most charming of her kind.

The tall, stately girl will look well in a bridal gown of soft ivory satin and chiffon. A charmingly simple model recently at a fashionable wedding consisted of a draped princess overdress that dipped quite gayly to the right. This tunic slip reached up to the underarm and was completed by a top of chiffon with long flowing sleeves.

Under this princess slip there was a French slip silhouette, attached straight foundation skirt quite brief about the ankles, to conform with the slip silhouette. A long panel of satin was snapped to the shoulders as a train, so that it could be easily removed when dancing. A practical wedding dress of this type will be smart worn as a dinner gown during the following season and a few poinsettias or orchids for a corsage bouquet will take away the bridal appearance.

The little girl bride of Dresden china type will look her prettiest in a frock of tulle illusion and rare lace or flowered crepe. An exquisitely dainty gown for a young bride was of white chiffon and lace. There was a china silk petticoat flounced with deep lace and over it hung an uneven tunic of chiffon edged with several tiny pleated ruffles. For what frock is fashionable this season without its tunic to cover its scantiness?

A simple blouse of tucked chiffon was collared with lace, but the unusual sleeves with the odd cuffs were what one remembered particularly about this gown. The sleeves were of chiffon, our rather close and extended a little below the elbow. There they were met by a deep, circular flare cuff of the lace that hung in points over the wrists. To connect the blouse with the skirt a girdle of self material would itself about the waist, and of course there was a long train of chiffon clouded by the lace veil.

Wedding gowns for the most beautiful and practical are finding favor in feminine eyes, and it is quite apropos to remove the train for that one will be ready for the dance or welcome home dinner party without the expense of a new evening gown. For it is no longer considered good form among the middle class, at least, to lay aside one's wedding gown in the family cedar chest after the ceremony, but to be happy and gay and wear it often.

Cured

Mrs. Ghostwalk had got the spiritualistic craze, and got into the habit of receiving messages from the departed when she ought to have been making her husband's dinner. Hubby protested, and then he acted. In a week she was cured, and his friends marvelled.

"How did you do it?" they asked him.

"Oh," said he, smiling, "I got the craze, too, and every seance we went to I got a loving message from my first wife—see?"

Experimental

"Dad," inquired a small boy, "what is a test case?" "A test case, my son," replied his parent, "is a case brought into court to decide whether there's enough in it to justify lawyers in working up more cases of a similar kind."

Break the News to Mother

A CLEVERLY TOLD NEW FILM SERIAL

By A. A. Waterbury

Novelized from the film production, "Break the News to Mother," soon to be seen on the screen. Was founded on the popular song by Charles K. Harris, and is released by Select Pictures Corporation.

"THANK you, thank you!" cried Mrs. Bray, "he will be glad to do that, I am sure. You don't know what this means to me."

Mr. Godwin sent a call for his superintendent and introduced him to his caller, and Mr. Flint on hearing the decision, declared that he would be very glad to try David out again on the condition named by his employer.

David himself, while his mother was pleading for his reinstatement, was asking Ruth to meet him at the store of Pop Hinkel. When she came he bemoaned the fact that he had not made an end of Flint.

Ruth was worried. "No, David, you're wrong; there's nothing to be gained by that kind of thing."

"But I tell you he's no good," insisted the man.

"I think you were greatly to blame," the girl reminded him.

"Oh, I know I'm not worth anything," he said sullenly. "You'd better pass me up, Ruth."

Ruth's eyes filled, but she was prevented from answering by the entrance of the proprietor who overheard the remark, and looking straight at David, observed with meaning: "Now you've said something."

A Bitter Arraignment

The young man glared at Pop Hinkel. The latter did not flinch. "I mean it," he asserted. "Here you are with the nicest mother a boy ever had and a girl like Ruth, who is a thousand times too good for you, and what do you do? You are a weak that you prefer the society of drunkards and ne'er-do-wells to your own home and Ruth's home. Instead of working hard to advance yourself, to make yourself worthy of the affection of these women, you act like a baby. I hope for Ruth's sake she will take you at your word and give you up, for if she were to marry you, you would break her heart in a month."

Never before had the proprietor or the girl heard their old friend talk like this, and yet it was evident to the boss that every word was true. Not so Ruth.

"It doesn't make any difference what he does," she said. "I shall always love him just the same."

"Well, he doesn't deserve it," answered Pop Hinkel; "and I'm afraid you'll be sorry one of these days."

"I'm not fit to look at you!" cried the penitent David. "I won't make any more promises, but I'll try."

Pop Hinkel slipped away, and the two embraced, happy in the feeling that for the present at least all source of quarrel had been removed.

When David returned home without visiting the Gold Dollar this time he found his mother smiling.

"It's all right, David. "I saw Mr. Godwin and Mr. Flint, and they will take you back if you will apologize to the superintendent."

In spite of his resolution this was a blow to David. "I can't apologize to that fellow," he said; "it goes against me—the humiliation, think of it!"

David Promises

"There will be no humiliation; you can go this evening and see him alone—so told me so. Now, David, you'll surely do this?"

"I'll do it, mother; it's a bitter pill, but I'll swallow it."

"It may be the turning point of your life, David," she said, "and it won't hurt you, anyway."

Nevertheless, when the young man set out that evening to call on the superintendent it required all his nerve to walk. He walked along thinking of Ruth and bracing himself for the ordeal.

Mr. Flint was working late. He expected Bray and he had philosophically allowed him to come after the rest of the office had left in order to spare him the humiliation of a public apology, or that he felt any kindness toward David, but because this concession placed him in an enviable light before Mr. Godwin and Ruth, for he had no doubt that she would hear of the whole matter.

He fidgeted a little and told Burke, the watchman, that he was expecting Bray; then he had laid a loaded revolver on the desk and covered it with a paper. He did not know quite what he might expect from Bray and he was resolved to be ready.

He looked at his watch and as he slipped it back into his pocket he was startled by a tap on the window. Mr. Flint had only a few minutes to waste on David—he was planning to call at the Godwins later, and the advent of Edna Holmes was something he had not bargained for, somehow Edna had faded from his memory.

A Surly Greeting

Nevertheless there was nothing to do but admit her—he pulled back the bolt from the door that led to the outer stairway and called. Edna appeared in the room and even he was shocked at her appearance.

"Well?" he asked, "what do you want—I am in a hurry—I am expecting a man on business."

There was no mistaking the aversion in his tone.

"What do I want?" asked the girl in a loneless voice, "I want you to keep your promise to me—I want you to marry me."

Warren Flint looked at her with unconcern. "I am sorry, Edna, but you know that people change; I don't want to be harsh, but I can't marry you, for many reasons."

People Constipated and Don't Know It!

It seems odd, but it is true, that you may be constipated and not know it. You can see why it is. Take a glass and pour in water until full. If you keep on pouring in water after the glass is full, it will run over, but the glass stays full. That is why your bowels, they get full of waste matter and then they pass off or expel from the body only about the same amount that goes into it in the form of food.

So you may have a movement of the bowels every day and yet there will remain waste matter that ought to be removed.

Give your bowels a gentle but thorough cleansing out and you'll feel great.

A fine prescription for this is put up and sold under the name of Dr. True's Elixir. Doctors and druggists use it in their own families. Costs but little and brings health to men, women and children. Sweet and pleasant tasting. Works gently. Children like it. Remember the name, Dr. True's Elixir.

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed in olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a tireless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one or Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets mighty for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women as well as men take Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep in the pink of condition. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

The Heart Breaker

A PRESENT DAY AMERICAN ROMANCE

Interesting Story of Love at Cross Purposes of Two Sisters and a Man

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER LXII.

Copyright, 1919, Star Company

MILDRED BRUCE stopped at a drug store on her way home.

Ruth a booth here she could telephone without fear of being overheard.

She succeeded in getting speech with Tom Chandler and learned from him that he was not leaving town until 11 o'clock tonight.

"I would love to see you once more, kid," he assured her jocosely. "But I do not intend to run into such a hornet's nest as I struck last night. That was the limit! No calling at your house just now for me!"

"Of course not," Mildred agreed eagerly. "But isn't there something we can meet just for a little while? I did not say half I wanted to last night."

"Suppose," the man suggested after a moment's thought, "that you take the Windleigh avenue trolley and meet me just inside Forest Park? Bet I forget the rain. You would get soaked."

"I don't care if I do," the girl declared. "But where would we go then?"

"We could take a little walk in the park. But suppose it is still pouring?"

"What of that?" Mildred retorted. "Macintosh and umbrellas keep one dry, not to mention rubber overshoes."

She laughed excitedly. Already the gloom of the morning was dispelled. She was going to see Tom! That was all she thought of now.

"Well, make it 4:30 and walk down the right-hand path," Tom directed. "I will meet you sure, but I must get back in time for supper with my devoted parents."

"I will be there at four-thirty, and will walk along the right-hand path," Mildred promised.

She went on home, her mind full of her plans. She did not appreciate that she was making a bid for the attentions of a man who had declared to make an appointment to see her.

At dinner she talked brightly. Mrs. Higgins had been assisted downstairs and sat at the table in an easy chair. She looked at Mildred in surprise. How could she be so gay when the man she loved was wrecked? Mildred was not easy to comprehend.

A Pertinent Question

Honora said little. She was wishing that Mildred would call on Mrs. Bruce, yet she dare not suggest it. Perhaps Mildred herself would propose it.

"Are you going out this afternoon?" Honora asked after a while.

"I have an engagement this afternoon?" was the non-committal reply.

"Were there many people in church this morning," the older girl inquired.

"Oh!" Honora's surprise caught her off her guard. "I thought that was where you had gone."

"I do not know why you should have thought that," Mildred observed. "Surely my first duty was to Arthur's mother. I stayed with here while Arthur was out."

Honora suppressed an ejaculation of astonishment. She had wanted Mildred to go to the Bruce home—as it was the decent and conventional thing for her to do—yet she was slightly disconcerted by the girl's statement. Only last night Mildred had pled and seemed far apart. Now Mildred had been spending the morning with Arthur's mother.

"Yes," Mildred went on when Honora made no comment, "I went there. I might have remained all this afternoon, too, but when I learned you were going there I decided to come back home."

"There is no need of my going if you can stay with Mrs. Bruce," Honora said quickly.

"Oh, yes, there is," Mildred contradicted, "for when I found that you wished to go I made another engagement for this afternoon."

"But if you wanted to be with Mrs. Bruce," Honora began.

"Wanted to!" Mildred interrupted with a harsh laugh. "No, I thank you! I can imagine many more agreeable things than spending a rainy afternoon in that depressing atmosphere. I do not envy you your hours there—not one bit!"

To See a Friend

"Perhaps," Mrs. Higgins interposed with what she hoped was a tactful suggestion, "Arthur is coming here."

"Not if I know it!" Mildred exclaimed. "I mean—he is not coming. I have no time to see him."

"Where are you going?" Honora interrogated sternly, in spite of her determination not to interfere.

"Miss Jasper?"

The query contained a sarcasm that Mrs. Higgins did not detect, but it brought a flush to Mildred's cheeks.

"No, not Miss Jasper," she retorted.

After which no more questions were asked.

AM. INT. CORP. UP 5 POINTS AT MIDDAY

Big Lot Trading Sends U. S. Steel Common Nearly to Par

By W. H. ROSS.
Financial Editor.

Trading on a large scale characterized the New York market at midday after transactions totalling more than half a million shares in the first two hours. American International Corporation was especially strong, advancing five points early in trading and Sinclair Oil more than four. General Motors also continued to show a large gain. Shipbuilding had a further strong motor. Pierce Arrow sold at its year's highest. The call rate was 6 per cent.

LARGEST AFTERNOON GAINS.

Largest gains in the afternoon included U. S. Steel, 1¾ at 99; Bethlehem B, 1¾ at 76¾; Atlantic Gulf, 2¾ at 131; Marine preferred, 1¾ at 113; American International Corporation, 4½ at 51¾, after selling at 52¼; Associated Dry Goods, 2 at 142½; Corn Products, 1 at 69¾; General Motors, 2½ at 179½, after selling at the year's highest record price; Mexican Petroleum, 1 at 67¾; American Sugar, 1¼ at 125, Sinclair Oil, 3¼ at 52¾; Texas, at 2 at 117, and United Cigar Stores, 1¼ at 122½.

STOCKS AT RECORD HIGHS.

Opening strong, stocks continued to improve during the morning, although a number were below their highest for that period by noon. On the New York exchange, six sold at highest record prices, while this was true of one in Boston. Trading was very active, first hour transactions in New York totalling, more than 250,000 shares. During the first hour the terms of the Victory Loan became more of a bull influence and demand for stocks came from all parts of the country. Issues to sell on that exchange at record highs were Associated Dry Goods, Sinclair Oil, Kelly Springfield, Corn Products, American Linseed Oil and General Motors. U. S. Steel was strong from the start, selling at 98¾ at its highest, or a point above Saturday's closing figure. The strongest issues were specialties and they were more active also than the so-called standard issues. Coppers and rails had a firm tone, but were inactive. St. Paul was weak. Predictions that railway rates will be advanced had little influence upon carriers as a class.

AMERICAN TELEPHONE QUIET.

The Boston market had a fairly firm tone at the start, but prices were irregular here all the morning. Telephone shares received little attention. Boston & Maine preferred, selling at a record high price. Packing house shares were steady, but inactive as a group.

The local market improved in stocks at noontime. Warren Brothers common advanced 2 to 32, its highest for the year, and Walworth 1¾ to 21¾, also a 1919 highest. Stewart was selling in the afternoon at 43, up two points. It had sold at 42¾, its record highest.

VICTORY LOAN SUBSCRIBED.

Strength of the New York market at the opening was not attributed alone to the announcement of the terms of the Victory Loan, as these did not appear financiers and brokers about what had been hoped for by speculators. It at all contrary to expectations, it was because they are more satisfactory than forecasts. There is no doubt but that the list of the series of patriotic loans will be an emphatic success. The country's resources are such that it can be absorbed with ease. That is one reason why speculation is active on such a great scale while the loan is pending. Although business readjustment has had its delays, the country is in a far more prosperous condition than is generally appreciated. Americans are the richest people in the world and great as past prosperity has been, it will be surpassing in the future. The best way of helping the Victory Loan is to subscribe—the first day subscriptions will be accepted.

SECURITIES IN DEMAND.

There was a good demand for securities at the opening of exchanges and there was a continuation of buying by the public. Trading was still largely confined, however, to a few industrial or other specialties which have featured the market for weeks. Several issues sold at record high prices on initial transactions. U. S. Steel, the barometer of speculative activity, advanced nearly a point on its first sale. News from the peace conference, as to the factors and domestic reports were construed favorably. General Motors reported net profits for 1918 of $34,504,576 and, after preferred and debenture dividends, the balance for common stock was $8.75, compared with $34.29 for 1917.

RAILWAY MEN ARE PAID THREE BILLIONS YEARLY

Salaries and wages paid to employes by railroads in this country now approximate $3,000,000,000 a year. In the last three years increases granted railway employes total $1,000,000,000, and the average increase since 1915 is 117 per cent. Increases in their pay since 1910 is shown by the following table, giving the annual earnings per employe.

Year	All employes	Train crews	Engine men
1910	$675	$983	$1200
1914	810	1,253	771
1917	1,470	1,900	1,400
1918	1,330	1,870	1,200
1919	1,520	2,100	1,400

Since roads passed under Federal control freight rates and fares have increased about $1,100,000,000. But that is not enough to equal the increase of operating and maintenance costs. Advances in price of coal, steel and supplies in general increased expenses at least $500,000,000.

COTTON PRICES IRREGULAR AT THE MARKET OPENING

New York, April 14.—The cotton market opened steady today, but somewhat irregular in the new contracts showing a partial net rise of 12 points, and old styles partly 10 points lower. SAVINGS BANKS HOLD RECORD DEPOSITS

Despite the high cost of living and investments in Liberty Bonds totalling a vast aggregate, Bostonians have saved money on a greater scale than ever they did when food, clothing, fuel, transportation and every other necessity was half or more less than it is now. While wages have gone up they have not climbed proportionately with household and other expenses. The thrift habit has grown, it seems.

That the war promoted thrift is indicated by the increase in savings bank deposits. In Boston on the April 1 quarter day this year they had reached the high record total of $332,447,000, an increase of $3,538,000 since the end of January, when they amounted to $328,909,000. The increase in nine months, or since June 29, 1918, when they totalled $317,834,000, was $14,613,000.

How deposits grew in individual Boston savings banks from the end of June last to the end of March this year is shown by the following table (final 000 omitted):

	March 31, 1919	Jan. 31, 1919	Oct. 31, 1918	June 29, 1918

Phoebe A. Hearst

Born December 4, 1842
Died April 13, 1919

Seven thousand students of the University of California, to whose upbuilding Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst as Trustee devoted many years of work, united on the occasion of her seventieth birthday in sending a mammoth loving cup to the noble woman whom they all knew personally. In their written Greetings they said:

"A little company of scholars fed the flame of learning here as a bare and humble precinct. But your eyes beheld the vision of a broader day when thronging thousands would gather from lands beyond seas to enter into communion with the ardent spirit of this age and the loftiest spirits of all ages, to quicken their minds and souls for the full living of life and for service to their fellows and the State.

"But first and foremost you have given to your time fit example of good womanhood—neighbor, friend, wife, mother—mother in tender affection to a very host of young and old.

"Diligent in toil, faithful in responsibilities, generous in affection, wise in counsel, modest and simple in demeanor, forgetful always of yourself. Good citizen, wife, friend, lover of truth, beauty and wisdom. Of all your varied service to the world, most precious of all is the testimony of your life in the living to the goodness and beauty of woman."

Salvation Army Will Ask for Lump Sum in Support

Ask any soldier who reached the front what he thinks of the war work of the Salvation Army, and he will tell you it was "fine." Or he may say "great." We have heard many such boosts. We have yet to hear a knock.

The Salvation Army knew human nature because it had always been close to it. It made its war service practical, just as it makes the service it renders to needy human beings in times of peace.

For one thing, the Salvation Army does not manifest a spirit of patronage. It does not practice philanthropy with one eye on vain glory and another on profits. It feeds the hungry, clothes the naked and builds its religious appeal on what still unquenched sparks of spirituality it can, with its practical helpfulness, fan back into a flame.

Half the time of its earnest workers has usually been spent in soliciting funds to pay for its work. Society cheats itself in requiring this. The worth of the work deserves a better basis of support.

In the week from May 19 to 26 the Salvation Army is to ask the American people for $12,000,000 with which to conduct its useful nation-wide activities for one year.

It wants to help the needy of all kinds during the transition days of reconstruction. But it does not want to consume half of its energies in securing the means. So in an intensive drive it will seek a lump sum.

The plan is sensible and the appeal should be successful. We know of no work more deserving of aid.

Do You Laugh With Your Eyes Shut—Or Open?

Copyright, 1919, Star Company

The proper study of mankind is NOT man.

Pope was mistaken about that. The proper study of mankind is the outside universe—the machine in which man is a mere microbe.

It would be foolish for a microbe to write, "The proper study of microbe-kind is the microbe." It is just as foolish to say that the proper study of mankind is man.

Once in a while, however, it is permissible for man to study man, for a change, and amuse himself by noticing the peculiarities of the little human germs that are put here to cultivate this planet, take care of it, drain its swamps, irrigate its deserts and incidentally develop a respectable human race.

It is interesting to observe whether you or your friends laugh with your eyes SHUT, or your eyes OPEN.

Little children, and grown-up human beings that have remained children, in spirit, shut their eyes tight when they laugh.

It is pleasant to see young boys and girls laughing with their eyes shut. Their laughter seems very mirthful, very pleasing. Little children that shut their eyes tight and laugh are very pretty.

But if you laugh with your eyes open, and a rather cold look, you can comfort yourself with the thought that you are not quite so pretty—but probably a little higher up in the intellectual scale.

When you shut your fist naturally, do you put the thumb outside of the fingers or inside of the fingers?

"They say" that the individual who shuts his hand with the thumb inside will be ruled by others. He who shuts his hand with the thumb outside will rule.

But "they say" may be mistaken. It does seem probable, however, that those physically stronger, and inherently capable of delivering a strong blow, would shut the hand with the thumb out. Whether it is desirable or not to be of a nature that can deliver hard blows, you must decide.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

The Nut Tinkers Once More

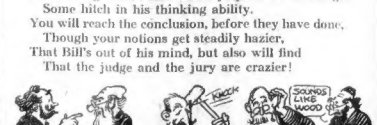
Many expert alienists will be called as to the Kaiser's mental condition when he is placed on trial.—News item.

PROFESSOR ODIPPI and Doctor McNutt,
Those masters of psycho-analysis,
Will soon leave their homes for the marble-built domes
Of lordly Parisian palaces.
For all the authorities who can be found
On dips and inherent rascality
Will hurry to France for the fat, juicy chance
To pass on the Kaiser's mentality.

AND some will declare that the prisoner's hair
Is brushed with such palpable vanity
That none can dispute that his pleasure in loot
And murder is born of insanity,
While others will knock on the Emperor's block
In a manner profound and mysterious,
And murmur: "Tut, tut! If the man was a nut
This action would make him delirious."

STILL others will peek in his eye with a glass,
Examine its savage rigidity,
And swear that such lamps only grow upon scamps
Who are victims of doglike rabidity.
And sometimes they'll prove that the subject is sane.
With a mind that the world ought to venerate,
And sometimes make clear that for many a year
He has been a man-killing degenerate.

ANON you will fancy, as Doc after Doc
Bears witness with easy facility,
That he ought to be shot—then you'll think he has got
Some hitch in his thinking ability.
You will reach the conclusion, before they have done,
Though your notions get steadily hazier,
That Bill's out of his mind, but also will find
That the judge and the jury are crazier!



WHO KNOWS?

Possibly when the censorship lifts, if it ever does, we shall know whether the peace conference is a fight or a frolic.

TYPOGRAPHICAL ERROR

We think that when Frank Simonds is quoted as saying that the Kaiser is coming back he must have written "coing" for "coming."

Ye TOV'N GOSSIP

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

By K. C. B.

Ye Town Gossip.

Dear K. C. B.—You don't know us, but we know you. Nearly every day at noon you come to the restaurant where we work and eat your lunch. We are the waitresses, and every day we read your column in the paper. We want you to tell us if you like us better than the men who used to wait on you. We will look for your answer in the paper.

The Waitresses.

DEAR WAITRESSES.
IF I told you the truth.
I MIGHT be poisoned.
BY A jealous waiter.
BUT, ANYWAY.
I'LL TAKE a chance.
AND TELL you.
THAT FOR years and years.
I'VE BEEN tipping waiters.
AND MOST of the time.
AND IN most cases.
I'VE HAD to do it.
JUST FOR the reason.
THAT THE waiter expected it
AND IF I didn't do it.
I'D BE a piker.
AND I haven't the courage.
TO BE a piker.
THOUGH IT may be true.
THAT LOTS of times.
I'D LIKE to be one.
AND RECENTLY.
AND SINCE the time.
THAT THE waitresses.
HAVE BEEN serving me.
THERE'S COME a change.
AND WHATEVER I leave.
ON THE little tray.
THAT BEARS the check.
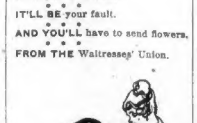
AND IT means my thanks.
FOR THE little things.
THAT ONLY a woman.
KNOWS HOW to do.
WHEN SHE waits on man.
AND I think it may be.
THAT ONE of the reasons.
I FEEL as I do.
IS THAT I was born.
IN AN old-fashioned place.
IN AN old-fashioned time.
WHEN MEN folks worked.
AT THE harder tasks.
AND THE women folks.
FUSSED AROUND inside.
AND SET the table.
AND COOKED the food.
AND CARRIED it in.
AND I grew up there.
AND AS far as I've gone.
IN MILES or years.
SINCE I went away
I HAVE a belief.
THAT I took with me.
JUST A little bit.
OF THE old-fashioned place.
AND THE old-fashioned time.
AND I'VE answered your letter.
AND IF I'm poisoned.
BY A jealous waiter.
IT'LL BE your fault.
AND YOU'LL have to send flowers.
FROM THE Waitresses' Union.



I THANK you.

READ FIRST HISTORY OF YOUR OWN COUNTRY

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

I FREQUENTLY have letters asking me to lay out a course of profitable reading. These generally offer, however, no hint as to the writers' tastes and inclinations, and the field is wide. "Of making many books there is no end," and innumerable avenues lead out from even a small bookshelf. One correspondent may care most for poetry, another for books of travel, another for essays, and so on. But there is one foundation course for reading on which no one can go wrong. This is American history.

It is not so many years back that a so-called "intellectual" would have met the suggestion of American history with a shrug of the shoulders. It had no claims of long descent; there was no picturesque background such as made interesting the record of renaissance, feudal and ancient times. But we have changed all that. We are told now that the four brief centuries of our history are the most momentous in the history of the world, the first century of the United States as a nation the most significant to the human race in the annals of mankind.

In the words of a noted foreign historian, ours is a history of the growth of civilization under conditions new to humanity, of the greatest effort for freedom and the greatest experiment in democracy ever made by man; if it taught nothing—and it can teach the student almost everything—it would still charm with the fascination of romance.

Serves a Double Purpose

The reader will find in it the answer to many questions agitating his countrymen today, and he will insensibly be led off into many fascinating by-paths of research and instruction.

For American history, we are, as a rule, offered merely the history of the United States down from the Revolutionary War, with, perhaps, a short preliminary account of the discovery of America and the period of colonization. But back of the Revolution, in the era between 1492 and 1776, lies an enchanting and inspiring story.

Here one may trace in the impulses which brought the peoples of that time to an untamed continent and in the reaction which the events of the old world had upon the new, those springs of thought and action which eventually created the nation and are still moulding and shaping our destinies today, the sturdy growth of that individualism which thrived from learning to lean on one's self and to wrest from the wilderness a living and a home.

There is no surer way to breathe in the romance of America or to become familiar with the heroic figures of the era of adventure and exploration—those men who found our lakes and rivers and left their names upon them—than by reading the histories of Francis Parkman. They are so luminously clear, so simply, yet so fascinatingly written, that one hates to lay a volume down.

John Fiske went over much the same ground, only more elaborately and from a wider viewpoint, carrying the story down to the actual formation of the United States and the drafting of the Constitution. He said of his work:

Opened a New Field

The pages of these histories glow with a living fire, for our historians not only took a new field, but a new method, revolutionizing the whole plan of history writing. From the impetus given by Fiske and Parkman sprang that tremendous output of historical novels which occurred toward the end of the last century, although Longfellow, Whittier and Lowell had previously immortalized much of our legend and story in verse.

We also have many admirable historians of a single, striking period, notably Theodore Roosevelt's "The Winning of the West," in which one catches the initial stirring of that marvelous march of development across the American continent—a dogged struggle of men with forests, rivers, mountains, deserts on their way to the West, and still toward the West.

And they went, until they reached the land of gold and the western ocean, and then they turned back again to knit the West to the East and make us one nation—to give forever an answer to the question, "Why am I an American?"

Dogs and Wolves Hate Labor's Humble Place
Eight Hours All Over? No Too Long, Too Short Day, Bad

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1919.

You could take your choice, reading the newspapers yesterday. Some said the peace conference had agreed on racial equality for Japan. Others said the contrary.

And it makes no difference. There are different kinds of human beings on earth, the main divisions white, black and yellow. These, in the mass dislike each other. Nearly related, like wolves and dogs, they hate each other the more for the near relationship.

A black, white or yellow man would make a pet of and become attached to a young gorilla, rather than to a child of another race.

No use talking about equality until education and civilization create a race sufficiently high throughout to make sympathy take the place of race hatred.

It is a good idea to agree that all races are equal, on paper, provided you continue regulating Asiatic immigration. To stop that would be bad for Asiatics.

Wolves forcing their way into a bigger crowd of dogs, or vice versa, will not be happy.

Mr. Gompers, who has rendered good service to every class in America during the war, formulates labor's demands, following the war:

1. Labor is not merchandise; it is human, and must be dealt with accordingly.
2. Workers and employers must have the right to form unions.
3. No child labor under fourteen years of age.
4. Every worker entitled to enough for a decent living.
5. Women paid as well as men, for the same work.
6. One day's rest in seven.
7. Foreign workmen, lawfully admitted, as well treated as natives.
8. All States to protect workers' rights by careful inspection.

All simple and old. The Lord himself worked six days, rested the seventh, and said everybody should do the same. That was about 6,000 years ago, and still the order is not obeyed.

Labor's demands present workers as children, to be protected. You could find, nowhere, more complete recognition of labor's inferior place in the scale than in labor's own demands.

"Don't overwork our children; don't let women compete at low wages; make government protect us; don't ill-treat us."

Such is the appeal, humble and really pitiful, of those that could, with perfect ease, rule the country under existing laws, if they chose merely to vote together.

The Paris conference is said to have approved "the eight-hour day for all workers, all over the world." Paris may approve it, but the day will not be eight hours all over the world, because in many places eight hours work will not support a man.

The French peasant, walking on stilts across the deep sand in les landes, chewing his piece of bread made from ground chestnuts, cannot live on eight hours' work, nor can the Esquimau gentleman waiting for a seal head to come up through the ice hole.

Mr. Gompers wisely recognizes that the eight-hour day won't do for the whole world, but will do for this country, and that is the thing.

The world's history proves that neither the longest nor the shortest day is good for men in the long run.

The miserable man, compelled to slave from dawn until dark to live, developed nothing. The natives of the tropics, with no work more difficult than picking fruit from a tree, amounted to nothing.

The races that could get sure crops by reasonable work each day of each year, have led the world, not too much and not too little, said Aristotle, and that is true wisdom. Some day men with machines made to work as slaves of all and not as enrichers of a few, will live well on two hours of physical labor, but then they will work harder mentally than any slave has ever worked physically, and the world is not fit for that yet.

Take away absolute necessity for hard work, eight hours a day, and the human race would sink below the monkeys.

It is hard work that has raised it above the monkeys. Because they could get all they needed without work, the monkeys remained monkeys.

Observe one curious and absolutely new thing about the Russian revolution. It is actually starving the bourgeoisie and keeping alive the so-called lower classes. That has not happened in other revolutions. It is hard on the prosperous class of Russia, but reassuring to the ruling classes elsewhere. Those that get to the top are the ablest on the average, however much that fact may annoy those at the bottom. And when you starve or otherwise kill off your ablest class, you are making it easier for other nations to bose you.
